

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

A CONSTITUTION

OR

FOR THE

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

PREAMBLE.

The end of the institution, maintenance, and administration of government, is to secure the existence of the body politic, to protect it, and to furnish the individuals who compose it with the power of enjoying in safety and tranquillity their natural rights, and the blessings of life: and whenever these great objects are not obtained, the people have a right to alter the government, and to take measures necessary for their safety, prosperity, and happiness.

Objects of government.

The body politic is formed by a voluntary association of individuals: it is a social compact, by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good. It is the duty of the people, therefore, in framing a constitution of government, to provide for an equitable mode of making laws, as well as for an impartial interpretation and a faithful execution of them; that every man may, at all times, find his security in them.

Body politic, how formed. Its nature.

We, therefore, the people of Massachusetts, acknowledging, with grateful hearts, the goodness of the great Legislator of the universe, in affording us, in the course of His providence, an opportunity, deliberately and peaceably, without fraud, violence, or surprise, of entering into an original, explicit, and solemn compact with each other ; and of forming a new constitution of civil government, for ourselves and posterity ; and devoutly imploring His direction in so interesting a design, do agree upon, ordain, and establish, the following Declaration of Rights, and Frame of Government, as the CONSTITUTION OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

PART THE FIRST.

A Declaration of the Rights of the Inhabitants of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Equality and natural rights of all men.

ARTICLE I. All men are born free and equal, and have certain natural, essential, and unalienable rights ; among which may be reckoned the right of enjoying and defending their lives and liberties ; that of acquiring, possessing, and protecting property ; in fine, that of seeking and obtaining their safety and happiness.

Right and duty of public religious worship. Protection therein.
2 CUSH. 104.
12 ALLEN, 129.

II. It is the right as well as the duty of all men in society, publicly, and at stated seasons, to worship the SUPREME BEING, the great Creator and Preserver of the universe. And no subject shall be hurt, molested, or restrained, in his person, liberty, or estate, for worshipping God in the manner and season most agreeable to the dictates of his own conscience ; or for his religious profession of sentiments ; provided he doth not disturb the public peace, or obstruct others in their religious worship.

Amendment, Art. XI. substituted for this.

III. [As the happiness of a people, and the good order and preservation of civil government, essentially depend upon piety, religion, and morality ; and as these cannot be generally diffused through a community but by the institution of the public worship of God, and of public instructions in piety, religion, and morality : Therefore, to promote their happiness, and to secure the good order and preservation of their government, the people of this commonwealth have a right to invest their legislature with power to authorize and require, and the legislature shall, from time to time, authorize and require, the several towns, parishes, precincts, and other bodies politic, or religious societies, to make suitable provision, at their own expense, for the institution of the public worship of God, and for the support and maintenance of public Protestant teachers of piety, religion, and morality, in all cases where such provision shall not be made voluntarily.

Legislature empowered to compel provision for public worship ;

And the people of this commonwealth have also a right to, and do, invest their legislature with authority to enjoin upon all the subjects an attendance upon the instructions of the public teachers aforesaid, at stated times and seasons, if there be any on whose instructions they can conscientiously and conveniently attend.

and to enjoin attendance thereon.

Provided, notwithstanding, that the several towns, parishes, precincts, and other bodies politic, or religious societies, shall, at all times, have the exclusive right of electing their public teachers, and of contracting with them for their support and maintenance.

Exclusive right of electing religious teachers secured.

And all moneys paid by the subject to the support of public worship, and of the public teachers aforesaid, shall, if he require it, be uniformly applied to the support of the public teacher or teachers of his own religious sect or denomination, provided there be any on whose instructions he attends; otherwise it may be paid towards the support of the teacher or teachers of the parish or precinct in which the said moneys are raised.

Option as to whom parochial taxes may be paid, unless, etc.

And every denomination of Christians, demeaning themselves peaceably, and as good subjects of the commonwealth, shall be equally under the protection of the law: and no subordination of any one sect or denomination to another shall ever be established by law.]

All denominations equally protected. 8 Met. 182. Subordination of one sect to another prohibited.

IV. The people of this commonwealth have the sole and exclusive right of governing themselves, as a free, sovereign, and independent state; and do, and forever hereafter shall, exercise and enjoy every power, jurisdiction, and right, which is not, or may not hereafter be, by them expressly delegated to the United States of America, in Congress assembled.

Right of self-government secured.

V. All power residing originally in the people, and being derived from them, the several magistrates and officers of government, vested with authority, whether legislative, executive, or judicial, are their substitutes and agents, and are at all times accountable to them.

Accountability of all officers, etc.

VI. No man, nor corporation, or association of men, have any other title to obtain advantages, or particular and exclusive privileges, distinct from those of the community, than what arises from the consideration of services rendered to the public; and this title being in nature neither hereditary, nor transmissible to children, or descendants, or relations by blood, the idea of a man

Services rendered to the public being the only title to peculiar privileges, hereditary offices are absurd and unnatural.

born a magistrate, lawgiver, or judge, is absurd & unnatural.

Objects of government; right of people to institute and change it.

VII. Government is instituted for the common good for the protection, safety, prosperity, and happiness of the people; and not for the profit, honor, or private interest of any one man, family, or class of men: Therefore the people alone have an incontestible, unalienable, and infeasible right to institute government; and to reform, alter, or totally change the same, when their protection, safety, prosperity, and happiness require it.

Right of people to secure rotation in office.

VIII. In order to prevent those who are vested with authority from becoming oppressors, the people have right, at such periods and in such manner as they shall establish by their frame of government, to cause the public officers to return to private life; and to fill the vacant places by certain and regular elections and appointments.

All, having the qualifications prescribed, equally eligible to office. For the definition of "inhabitant," see Ch. I. Sect. 2, Art. II. Right of protection and duty of contribution correlative.

IX. All elections ought to be free; and all the inhabitants of this commonwealth, having such qualifications they shall establish by their frame of government, have equal right to elect officers, and to be elected, for public employments.

X. Each individual of the society has a right to be protected by it in the enjoyment of his life, liberty, and property, according to standing laws. He is obliged, consequently, to contribute his share to the expense of the protection; to give his personal service, or an equivalent when necessary: but no part of the property of any individual can, with justice, be taken from him, or applied to public uses, without his own consent, or that of the representative body of the people. In fine, the people of the commonwealth are not controllable by any other law than those to which their constitutional representative body have given their consent. And whenever the public exigencies require that the property of any individual should be appropriated to public uses, he shall receive reasonable compensation therefor.

Remedies, by recourse to the law, to be free, complete and prompt.

XI. Every subject of the commonwealth ought to find a certain remedy, by having recourse to the laws, for all injuries or wrongs which he may receive in his person, property, or character. He ought to obtain right and justice freely, and without being obliged to purchase it completely, and without any denial; promptly, and without delay; conformably to the laws.

XII. No subject shall be held to answer for any crimes or offence, until the same is fully and plainly, substantially, and formally, described to him; or be compelled to accuse, or furnish evidence against himself. And every subject shall have a right to produce all proofs that may be favorable to him; to meet the witnesses against him face to face, and to be fully heard in his defence by himself, or his counsel, at his election. And no subject shall be arrested, imprisoned, despoiled, or deprived of his property, immunities, or privileges, put out of the protection of the law, exiled, or deprived of his life, liberty, or estate, but by the judgment of his peers, or the law of the land.

XIV. Every subject has a right to be secure from all unreasonable searches, and seizures, of his person, his houses, his papers, and all his possessions. Liberty of the press.

XVI. The liberty of the press is essential to the security of freedom in a state: it ought not, therefore, to be restrained in this commonwealth.

Right to keep and bear arms. Standing armies dangerous. Military power subordinate to civil. 5 Gray, 121.

XVII. The people have a right to keep and to bear arms for the common defence. And as, in time of peace, armies are dangerous to liberty, they ought not to be maintained without the consent of the legislature; and the military power shall always be held in an exact subordination to the civil authority, and be governed by it.

Moral qualifications for office.

XVIII. A frequent recurrence to the fundamental principles of the constitution, and a constant adherence to those of piety, justice, moderation, temperance, industry, and frugality, are absolutely necessary to preserve the advantages of liberty, and to maintain a free government. The people ought, consequently, to have a particular attention to all those principles, in the choice of their officers and representatives: and they have a right to require of their lawgivers and magistrates an exact and constant observance of them, in the formation and execution of the laws necessary for the good administration of the commonwealth.

Moral obligations of lawgivers and magistrates.

Right of people to instruct representatives and petition legislature.

XIX. The people have a right, in an orderly and peaceable manner, to assemble to consult upon the common good; give instructions to their representatives, and to request of the legislative body, by the way of addresses, petitions, or remonstrances, redress of the wrongs done them, and of the grievances they suffer.

Power to suspend the laws or their execution.

XX. The power of suspending the laws, or the execution of the laws, ought never to be exercised but by the legislature, or by authority derived from it, to be exercised in such particular cases only as the legislature shall expressly provide for.

Freedom of debate, etc., and reason thereof.

XXI. The freedom of deliberation, speech, and debate in either house of the legislature, is so essential to the rights of the people, that it cannot be the foundation of any accusation or prosecution, action or complaint, in any other court or place whatsoever.

Frequent sessions, and objects thereof.

XXII. The legislature ought frequently to assemble for the redress of grievances, for correcting, strengthening and confirming the laws, and for making new laws, as the common good may require.

Taxation founded on consent. 8 Allen, 247.

XXIII. No subsidy, charge, tax, impost, or duties ought to be established, fixed, laid, or levied, under any pretext whatsoever, without the consent of the people or their representatives in the legislature.

XXIV. Laws made to punish for actions done before the existence of such laws, and which have not been declared crimes by preceding laws, are unjust, oppressive, and inconsistent with the fundamental principles of a free government.

Ex post facto laws prohibited.
12 Allen, 421,
424, 428, 434.

XXV. No subject ought, in any case, or in any time, to be declared guilty of treason or felony by the legislature.

Legislature not to convict of treason, etc.

XXVI. No magistrate or court of law shall demand excessive bail or sureties, impose excessive fines, or inflict cruel or unusual punishments.

Excessive bail or fines, and cruel punishments,
prohibited.
5 Gray, 482.

XXVII. In time of peace, no soldier ought to be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner; and in time of war, such quarters ought not to be made but by the civil magistrate, in a manner ordained by the legislature.

No soldier to be quartered in any house, unless,
etc.

XXVIII. No person can in any case be subject to law-martial, or to any penalties or pains, by virtue of that law, except those employed in the army or navy, and except the militia in actual service, but by authority of the legislature.

Citizens exempt
tial, unless, etc.

XXIX. It is essential to the preservation of the rights of every individual, his life, liberty, property, and character, that there be an impartial interpretation of the laws, and administration of justice. It is the right of every citizen to be tried by judges as free, impartial, and independent as the lot of humanity will admit. It is, therefore, not only the best policy, but for the security of the rights of the people, and of every citizen, that the judges of the supreme judicial court should hold their offices as long as they behave themselves well; and that they should have honorable salaries ascertained and established by standing laws.

In the government of this commonwealth, the legislative department shall never exercise the executive and judicial powers, or either of them: the executive shall never exercise the legislative and judicial powers, or either of them: the judicial shall never exercise the legislative and executive powers, or either of them: to the end it may be a government of laws and not of men.

99 Mass. 636.

II. But if he have any objection to the passing of such bill or resolve, he shall return the same, together with his objections thereto, in writing, to the senate or house of representatives, in whichsoever the same shall have originated; who shall enter the objections sent down by the governor, at large, on their records, and proceed to reconsider the said bill or resolve. But if after such reconsideration, two-thirds of the said senate or house of representatives, shall, notwithstanding the said objections, agree to pass the same, it shall, together with the objections, be sent to the other branch of the legislature, where it shall also be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of the members present, shall have the force of a law: but in all such cases,

To which courts and judicatories are hereby given and granted full power and authority, from time to time, to administer oaths or affirmations, for the better discovery of truth in any matter in controversy or depending before them.

IV. And further, full power and authority are hereby given and granted to the said general court, from time to time to make, ordain, and establish, all manner of wholesome and reasonable orders, laws, statutes, and ordinances, directions and instructions, either with penalties or without; so as the same be not repugnant or contrary to this constitution, as they shall judge to be for the good and welfare of this commonwealth, and for the government and ordering thereof, and of the subjects of the same, and for the necessary support and defence of the government thereof; and to name and settle annually, or provide by fixed laws for the naming and settling, all civil officers within the said commonwealth, the election and constitution of whom are not hereafter in this form of government otherwise provided for; and to set forth the several duties, powers, and limits, of the several civil and military officers of this commonwealth, and the forms of such oaths or affirmations as shall be respectively administered unto them for the execution of their several offices and places, so as the same be not repugnant or contrary to

THE UNIVERSITY AT CAMBRIDGE AND ENCOURAGEMENT OF LITERATURE, ETC.

SECTION I.

The University.

ARTICLE I. Whereas our wise and pious ancestors, so early as the year one thousand six hundred and thirty-six, laid the foundation of Harvard College, in which university many persons of great eminence have, by the blessing of God, been initiated in those arts and sciences which qualified them for public employments, both in church and state; and whereas the encouragement of arts and sciences, and all good literature, tends to the honor of God, the advantage of the Christian religion, and the great benefit of this and the other United States of America, —it is declared, that the PRESIDENT AND FELLOWS OF HARVARD COLLEGE, in their corporate capacity, and their successors in that capacity, their officers and servants, shall have, hold, use, exercise, and enjoy, all the powers, authorities, rights, liberties, privileges, immunities, and franchises, which they now have, or are entitled to have, hold, use, exercise, and enjoy; and the same are hereby ratified and confirmed unto them, the said president and fellows of Harvard College, and to their successors, and to their officers and servants, respectively, forever.

II. And whereas there have been at sundry times, by divers persons, gifts, grants, devises of houses, lands, tenements, goods, chattels, legacies, and conveyances, heretofore made, either to Harvard College in Cambridge, in New England, or to the president and fellows of Harvard College, or to the said college by some other description, under several charters, successively; it is declared, that All gifts, grants, etc., confirmed. all the said gifts, grants, devises, legacies, and conveyances, are hereby forever confirmed unto the president and fellows of Harvard College, and to their successors in the capacity aforesaid, according to the true intent and meaning of the donor or donors, grantor or grantors, devisor or devisors.

III. And whereas, by an act of the general court of the colony of Massachusetts Bay, passed in the year one thousand six hundred and forty-two, the governor and deputy-governor, for the time being, and all the magistrates of that jurisdiction, were, with the president, and a number of the clergy in the said act described, constituted the overseers of Harvard College; and it being necessary, in this new constitution of government to ascertain who shall be deemed successors to the said governor, deputy-governor, and magistrates; it is declared, that the governor, lieutenant-governor, council, and senate of this commonwealth, are, and shall be deemed, their successors, who, with the president of Harvard College, for the time being, together with the ministers of the congregational churches in the towns of Cambridge, Watertown, Charlestown, Boston, Roxbury, and Dorchester, mentioned in the said act, shall be, and hereby are, vested with all the powers and authority belonging, or in any way appertaining to the overseers of Harvard College; Who shall be overseers. See Statutes, 1851, 224. 1852, 27. 1859, 212. 1865, 173. 1880, 65. provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the legislature of this commonwealth from making such alterations in the government of the said university, as shall be conducive to its advantage, and the interest of the republic of letters, in as full a manner as might have been done by the legislature of the late Province of the Massachusetts Bay. Power of alteration reserved to the legislature.

ART. XIII. [A census of the inhabitants of each city and town, on the first day of May, shall be taken, and returned into the secretary's office, on or before the last day of June, of the year one thousand eight hundred and forty, and of every tenth year thereafter; which census shall determine the apportionment of senators and representatives for the term of ten years.

122 Mass. 595.

The several senatorial districts now existing shall be permanent. The senate shall consist of forty members; and in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty, and every tenth year thereafter, the governor and council shall assign the number of senators to be chosen in each district, according to the number of inhabitants in the same. But, in all cases, at least one senator shall be assigned to each district.

House of representatives, how apportioned.
Provisions as to representatives superseded by amendments, Art. XXI.

The members of the house of representatives shall be apportioned in the following manner: Every town or city containing twelve hundred inhabitants may elect one representative; and two thousand four hundred inhabitants shall be the mean increasing number, which shall entitle it to an additional representative.

Small towns, how represented.

Every town containing less than twelve hundred inhabitants shall be entitled to elect a representative as many times within ten years as the number one hundred and sixty is contained in the number of the inhabitants of said town. Such towns may also elect one representative for the year in which the valuation of estates within the commonwealth shall be settled.

Towns may unite into representative districts.

Any two or more of the several towns may, by consent of a majority of the legal voters present at a legal meeting, in each of said towns, respectively, called for that purpose, and held before the first day of August, in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty, and every tenth year thereafter, form themselves into a representative district, to continue for the term of ten years; and such district shall have all the rights, in regard to representation, which would belong to a town containing the same number of inhabitants.

The number of inhabitants which shall entitle a town to elect one representative, and the mean increasing number which shall entitle a town or city to elect more than one, and also the number by which the population of towns not entitled to a representative every year is to be divided, shall be increased, respectively, by one-tenth of the numbers above mentioned, whenever the population of the commonwealth shall have increased to seven hundred and seventy thousand, and for every additional increase of seventy thousand inhabitants, the same addition of one-tenth shall be made, respectively, to the said numbers above mentioned.

Basls of representation, and ratio of increase.

In the year of each decennial census, the governor and council shall, before the first day of September, apportion the number of representatives which each city, town, and representative district is entitled to elect, and ascertain how many years, within ten years, any town may elect a representative, which is not entitled to elect one every year; and the governor shall cause the same to be published forthwith.

The governor and council to apportion the number of representatives of each town once in every ten years.

Nine councillors shall be annually chosen from among the people at large, on the first Wednesday of January, or as soon thereafter as may be, by the joint ballot of the senators and representatives, assembled in one room, who shall, as soon as may be, in like manner, fill up any vacancies that may happen in the council, by death, resignation, or otherwise. No person shall be elected a councillor, who has not been an inhabitant of this commonwealth for the term of five years immediately preceding his election; and not more than one councillor shall be chosen from any one senatorial district in the commonwealth.]

ART. XV. The meeting for the choice of governor, lieutenant-governor, senators, and representatives, shall be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, annually; but in case of a failure to elect representatives on that day, a second meeting shall be holden, for that purpose, on the fourth Monday of the same month of November.

Organization of the government.

ART. XVI. Eight councillors shall be annually chosen by the inhabitants of this commonwealth, qualified to vote for governor. The election of councillors shall be determined by the same rule that is required in the election of governor. The legislature, at its first session after this amendment shall have been adopted, and at its first session after the next state census shall have been taken, and at its first session after each decennial state census thereafterwards, shall divide the commonwealth into eight districts of contiguous territory, each containing a number of inhabitants as nearly equal as practicable, without dividing any town or ward of a city, and each entitled to elect one councillor : provided, however, that if, at any time, the constitution shall provide for the division of the commonwealth into forty senatorial districts, then the legislature shall so arrange the councillor districts, that each district shall consist of five contiguous senatorial districts, as they shall be, from time to time, established by the legislature. No person shall be eligible to the office of councillor who has not been an inhabitant of the commonwealth for the term of five years immediately preceding his election. The day and manner of the election, the return of the votes, and the declaration of the said elections, shall be the same as are required in the election of governor. [Whenever there shall be a failure to elect the full number of councillors, the vacancies shall be filled in the same manner as is required for filling vacancies in the senate ; and vacancies occasioned by death, removal from the state, or otherwise, shall be filled in like manner, as soon as may be, after such vacancies shall have happened.] And that there may be no delay in the organization of the government on the first Wednesday of January, the governor, with at least five councillors for the time being, shall, as soon as may be, examine the returned copies of the records for the election of governor, lieutenant-governor, and councillors ; and ten days before the said first Wednesday in January he shall issue his summons to such persons as appear to be chosen, to attend on that day to be qualified accordingly ; and the secretary shall lay the returns before the senate and house of representatives on the said first Wednesday in January, to be by them examined ; and in case of the election of either of said officers, the choice shall be by them declared and published ; but in case there shall be no election of either of said officers, the legislature shall proceed to fill such vacancies in the manner provided in the constitution for the choice of such officers.

ART. XVII. The secretary, treasurer and receiver-general, auditor, and attorney-general, shall be chosen annually, on the day in November prescribed for the choice of governor; and each person then chosen as such, duly qualified in other respects, shall hold his office for the term of one year from the third Wednesday in January next thereafter, and until another is chosen and qualified in his stead. The qualification of the voters, the manner of the election, the return of the votes, and the declaration of the election, shall be such as are required in the election of governor. In case of a failure to elect either of said officers on the day in November aforesaid, or in case of the decease, in the mean time, of the person elected as such, such officer shall be chosen on or before the third Wednesday in January next thereafter, from the two persons who had the highest number of votes for said offices on the day in November aforesaid, by joint ballot of the senators and representatives, in one room; and in case the office of secretary, or treasurer and receiver-general, or auditor, or attorney-general, shall become vacant, from any cause, during an annual or special session of the general court, such vacancy shall in like manner be filled by choice from the people at large; but if such vacancy shall occur at any other time, it shall be supplied by the governor by appointment, with the advice and consent of the council. The person so chosen or appointed, duly qualified in other respects, shall hold his office until his successor is chosen and duly qualified in his stead. In case any person chosen or appointed to either of the offices aforesaid, shall neglect, for the space of ten days after he could otherwise enter upon his duties, to qualify himself in all respects to enter upon the discharge of such duties, the office to which he has been elected or appointed shall be deemed vacant. No person shall be eligible to either of said offices unless he shall have been an inhabitant of this commonwealth five years next preceding his election or appointment.

A census of the legal voters of each city and town, on the first day of May, shall be taken and returned into the office of the secretary of the commonwealth, on or before the last day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven; and a census of the inhabitants of each city and town, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and of every tenth year thereafter. The enumeration aforesaid shall determine the apportionment of representatives for the periods between the taking of the census.

The house of representatives shall consist of two hundred and forty members, which shall be apportioned by the legislature, at its first session after the return of each enumeration as aforesaid, to the several counties of the commonwealth, equally, as nearly as may be, according to their relative numbers of legal voters, as ascertained by the next preceding special enumeration; and the town of Cohasset, in the county of Norfolk, shall, for this purpose, as well as in the formation of districts, as hereinafter provided, be considered a part of the county of Plymouth;

Every representative, for one year at least next preceding his election, shall have been an inhabitant of the district for which he is chosen, and shall cease to represent such district when he shall cease to be an inhabitant of the commonwealth. The districts in each county shall be numbered by the board creating the same, and a description of each, with the numbers thereof and the number of legal voters therein, shall be returned by the board, to the secretary of the commonwealth, the county treasurer of each county, and to the clerk of every town in each district, to be filed and kept in their respective offices. The manner of calling and conducting the meetings for the choice of representatives, and of ascertaining their election, shall be prescribed by law. [Not less than one hundred members of the house of representatives shall constitute a quorum for doing business; but a less number may organize temporarily, adjourn from day to day, and compel the attendance of absent members.]

Such proportional parts shall be based upon the estimated average cost of all the sewers composing said systems, and shall be assessed by a fixed uniform rate according to the frontage of such estate on any street or way in which a sewer is constructed, or according to the area of such estate within a fixed depth from such street or way, or according to both frontage and area; and every such owner shall, within three months after written notice of such assessment served on him or on the occupants of his estate, or sent by mail to the last address of said owner known to said commissioners, pay the sum so assessed to the collector of taxes of said town; provided, that said board shall, on the written request of any such owner, made within said three months, apportion such assessment into such number of equal parts or instalments, not exceeding five, as said owner shall state in such request; and said board shall certify such apportionment to the assessors of said town, and one of said parts or instalments, with interest from the date of said apportionment at the rate of six per cent. per annum, shall be added by the assessors to the annual tax on such estates for each year next ensuing until all said parts have been so added, unless sooner paid as hereinafter provided, and provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the payment at any time in one payment, notwithstanding its prior apportionment, of any balance of said assessments then remaining unpaid, but interest on such balance at the rate of six per cent. per annum shall be paid to the date of such payment; and thereupon the collector of taxes of said town shall receive the same and shall certify such payment or payments to the assessors, who shall preserve a record thereof. SECTION 9. The town of Dedham, for the purpose of paying the necessary expenses and liabilities incurred under this act, may incur indebtedness and may issue from time to time as may be required therefor, bonds, notes or scrip to an amount not exceeding two hundred thousand dollars; and the debt and loan authorized by this act, and the notes, bonds or scrip issued therefor, shall not be considered or reckoned in determining the authorized limit of indebtedness of said town under the provisions of section four of chapter twenty-nine of the Public Statutes and of acts in amendment thereof or in addition thereto. Such bonds, notes or scrip shall bear on their face the words, Dedham Sewerage Loan, shall be payable within periods not exceeding forty years from the issuing of such bonds, notes or scrip respectively, and shall bear interest payable semi-annually at a rate not exceeding five per cent. per annum. Said bonds, notes or scrip shall be signed by the treasurer of said town and shall be countersigned by a majority of the selectmen. The said town may sell such securities or any part thereof, from time to time, at public or private sale, or pledge the same for money borrowed for the purposes of this act: provided, Provided. that they shall not be sold or pledged for less than the par value thereof; and the proceeds thereof shall be retained in the treasury, and the treasurer shall pay therefrom the expenses incurred for the purposes aforesaid.

SECTION 10. Said town instead of establishing a sinking fund may, at the time of authorizing said loan, provide for the payment thereof in such annual proportionate payments as will extinguish the same within the time prescribed in this act; and when such vote has been passed the amount required thereby, less the amount that may be appropriated therefor as provided in the following section, shall without further vote be assessed by the assessors of said town in each year thereafter until the debt incurred by said town shall be extinguished, in the same manner as other taxes are assessed under the provisions of section thirty-four of chapter eleven of the Public Statutes. May provide for annual payments on loan.

SECTION 11. The receipts from assessments and payments made in lieu thereof under this act shall, after deducting all charges and expenses for and incident to the maintenance and operation of said systems of sewerage, be applied first to the payment of the interest upon said bonds, notes or scrip issued under authority of this act, not otherwise provided for, and the balance shall be set apart for the payment or redemption of said bonds, notes or scrip, or for the payment of the further extension of the system or systems of sewerage herein authorized to be laid out and constructed by said town, as the said town shall vote, and shall be used for no other purpose. If the receipts from said assessments and payments made in lieu thereof, in any year, not appropriated for the construction and maintenance of sewers as aforesaid, shall be insufficient to pay the interest on said bonds, notes or scrip, and the principal as it falls due, then, in such case, said town shall raise forthwith by taxation, in the same manner as money is raised and appropriated for other town purposes, such sum as will meet said requirements. Payment of loan, etc.

SECTION 12. Said board of commissioners shall annually appoint a clerk, and may appoint a superintendent of sewers, neither of whom shall be one of their own number, and may remove said clerk or superintendent at their pleasure. The compensation of said clerk and superintendent and of said commissioners shall be fixed by said town. Clerk and superintendent, appointment, etc.

SECTION 13. All contracts made by said board of commissioners for the purposes of this act shall be the contracts of said town, and shall be signed by said board, but no contracts shall be made or obligations incurred by said commissioners for the laying out and construction of said systems of sewerage, in excess of the amount of money appropriated by the town therefor.

May prescribe rules and regulations, etc.

SECTION 14. Said board of commissioners may prescribe rules and regulations for the connecting of estates and buildings with said main drains and sewers, and for the inspection of materials, construction, alteration or use of all connections and drains entering into such main drains or sewers, and may impose penalties, not exceeding twenty dollars, for each violation of any such rule or regulation. Such rules and regulations shall be published not less than once a week for four successive weeks in some newspaper published in said town of Dedham, and shall not take effect until such publication has been made.

May connect with sewers of Hyde Park, etc.

SECTION 15. Said board of commissioners may enter into an agreement with the town of Hyde Park for the disposal of such sewage as cannot be conveniently conveyed from any portion of the town of Dedham by gravity flow to the main valley sewer authorized to be constructed, maintained and operated by the provisions of chapter four hundred and six of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and may make such connections with the sewers now or hereafter to be constructed by said town of Hyde Park as may be required for such disposal, upon such terms as may be agreed upon between said towns; and for that purpose may enter upon and dig up any street or way in said town of Hyde Park, and may take by purchase or otherwise any lands, rights of way or easements in said town necessary for the purpose of making such connections.

Certain provisions of law to apply.

SECTION 16. The provisions of chapter fifty of the Public Statutes and of acts in amendment thereof, and of chapter two hundred and forty-five of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and ninety-two, so far as applicable and not inconsistent with this act, shall apply to the town of Dedham in carrying out the provisions of this act.

When to take effect, etc.

SECTION 17. This act shall take effect upon its passage; but no expenditure shall be made and no liability incurred under the same unless this act shall first be accepted by vote of a majority of the legal voters of said town of first applied for, as provided in section thirteen of this act the Boston transit commission shall construct a tunnel or tunnels, of sufficient size for two railway tracks, with approaches, entrances, sidings, stations and connections therefor, and for the running of railway cars therein, from a point on or near Hanover street in the city of Boston, or such other point or points as said board may deem proper for a suitable connection with the subway or subways provided for in section twenty-five of said chapter five hundred and forty-eight, to a point at or near Maverick square in that part of Boston called East Boston, where a suitable connection with surface tracks may be made. requirements for that year ; or said board may altogether discontinue such toll when it is of opinion that such rental alone is sufficient to meet said requirements ; but any such reduction shall be carried into effect by a provision for the sale of tickets, and the cash fare shall continue to be one cent. The whole amount of such tolls and of said rentals is hereby pledged to meet the principal and interest of the bonds issued to pay for the construction of said tunnel or tunnels, and this pledge shall be expressed on the face of such bonds as one of the terms thereof ; provided, however, that after such tolls have been discontinued if said rentals shall for any year ending on the thirtieth day of September yield an amount more than sufficient to meet the interest and sinking fund requirements of said bonds for such year such excess over said requirements shall be regarded as general revenue of said city. In case in any year the rentals and tolls above-provided for shall not yield a sufficient amount to meet said interest and sinking fund requirements the compensation received by said city under section ten of this act shall be applied so far as may be necessary toward meeting such requirements. Said corporation shall be the agent of said city to collect such tolls under such arrangements as shall be agreed upon by said city and said corporation, or in case of disagreement, as shall be determined by the board of railroad commissioners.

At twelve o'clock on Thursday, the seventh day of January, his excellency the governor, accompanied by his honor the lieutenant governor, the members of the executive council, and officers of the civil and military departments of the government, attended by a joint committee of the two houses, met the senate and house of representatives, in convention, and delivered the following

ADDRESS.

Members of the General Court of Massachusetts :

Your immediate predecessors had been in session but two months when the governor of the Commonwealth was called by death to lay down the great trust which he held at the hands of the people. Frederic T. Greenhalge was the first governor of Massachusetts of foreign birth since Thomas Gage, one hundred and twenty years before, sailed down Boston harbor from the rebellious town. His intense loyalty to the state and nation of his adoption, his courageous independence in the performance of what he deemed his duty, his constantly increasing strength to meet every demand which opportunity proffered or responsibility imposed, had won for him in a remarkable degree the confidence and respect of our people. Still earlier in the session the Commonwealth had lost in the prime of his mature powers another of her foremost citizens, George D. Robinson, who, like Governor Greenhalge, had been honored by repeated election to the governorship, and in equal degree had conferred honor upon the high office he held. His rugged honesty of purpose, his vigor of thought and action and his successful administration of state affairs, rendered his term of office alike honorable to him and beneficial to the state.

When summer was at its height the death of still another of her well-beloved sons touched the heart of the Commonwealth with profound sorrow. Young, fearless, of unstained honor and exceptional mental and personal gifts, William E. Russell had deserved well of the state, and the future seemed to promise still greater usefulness and distinction. Widely separated as were their places of birth, different as were the conditions which surrounded their youth, these three men possessed the integrity, the resolution and the sense of the obligation of duty which we like to believe are characteristics of New England citizenship. May their example long be felt in the lesson it teaches of what manner of service Massachusetts demands of all whom she entrusts with responsible office.

We have reason to believe that the long period of business depression and loss to employer and employed will be soon ended and that a season of renewed confidence and consequent prosperity is at hand. During these years employment has been precarious and the profits of capital uncertain. Our people have endured the strain with courage and patience; they have deserved the reward which will follow a revival of industrial activity. Owing to the unprecedented conditions of the recent election it was not surprising to find the vastly preponderating majority of the citizens of this state ranged upon the side of sound finance and national honor. When these were threatened men of all parties were found fighting shoulder to shoulder to make secure in national affairs what had been the traditional policies of this Commonwealth. The victory won should confirm our confidence in popular government, and furnishes new evidence that our people have the intelligence rightly to discriminate, and the will rightly to decide.

STATE DEBT.

The net debt of the Commonwealth Jan. 1, 1896, was $5,240,380.10; the net debt of the Commonwealth Jan. 1, 1897, was $10,511,422.65. This increase is accounted for by the large amounts authorized for public improvements, of which the principal are the following:—

The loan for the abolition of grade crossings has been increased during the year by the issue of bonds to the amount of $3,500,000, state house loans to the amount of $1,125,000, and the state highway loan to the amount of $500,000.

The above figures indicate clearly the necessity for a rigid scrutiny on the part of your honorable bodies of all estimates submitted by the several departments, and for the enforcement of a prudent economy in all appropriations.

BOSTON HARBOR.

The great importance of maintaining the position of Boston as the second commercial port of the country has given rise of late years to much discussion. The legislature of 1896, by concurrent resolution of the two houses, requested the senators and representatives of this Commonwealth in congress to use their best efforts to secure the appropriation of a sum of money adequate for deepening, straightening and widening existing channels in our harbor to the depth of 30 feet at mean low water, and to the width of not less than 1,200 feet, and for opening a fair water way for vessels of the largest class through Broad Sound into the President Roads. These efforts were in great degree successful, and resulted in the insertion in the rivers and harbors act passed by congress in June, 1896, of a provision for dredging the main ship channel to a minimum width of 1,000 feet, and a minimum depth of 27 feet. Authority is given for the prosecution of the work under the continuing contract system, and it is therefore not likely to be interrupted. Contracts are authorized for an amount not to exceed $1,145,000, or nearly one half of the aggregate sum expended in the improvement of Boston harbor since 1825.

The Commonwealth supplemented this liberal action of the national government by appropriating the sum of $150,000, to be expended by the board of harbor and land commissioners in dredging between the main ship channel and a line 50 feet outside the harbor line. This great undertaking was not begun too soon. The narrow and tortuous channel, which in the past was fairly adequate for the commerce of the time, had become a positive danger for the vessels of far greater length and draught which are now in use. Commerce easily leaves a port where it is subjected to perils, inconveniences or exactions. In this connection the report which will be early presented to you of the state board on docks and terminal facilities will claim your considerate attention. I recommend that authority be given to the board of harbor and land commissioners to make such regulations as shall abate the danger and nuisance caused by the common practice of continuing into our restricted harbors the towing of three or more vessels in a line of unnecessary length. This may be open to no grave objection on the high seas, but seriously impedes navigation in port.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT.

The commission appointed in 1891 to investigate the advisability of establishing a general government with limited powers for the city of Boston and the surrounding cities and towns, generally known as the metropolitan district, presented its report to the legislature of last year. The commissioners note the increasing interrelation of interests within the proposed district in such matters as water supply, sewerage, parks, highways and means of transportation, and recommend that the people of the several cities and towns interested be given an opportunity to vote upon the main question of the establishment of a form of county government for the metropolitan district. The legislature of last year referred this important matter to the next general court, and it will therefore come before you for consideration and action.

It is gratifying to know that the work of supplying adequate facilities for the disposal of the sewage of the large population resident in this district is well advanced and will be soon completed. You will be asked to decide whether, for the purpose of securing unity of ownership and control, it may not be wise for the Commonwealth to take into its possession the main trunk sewer, pumping station and outfall of the Boston system, at a fair valuation.

The metropolitan water board, which was organized in July, 1895, has been actively prosecuting its work during the past season, and has made satisfactory progress. The building of the aqueduct, 12 miles in length, to connect the Nashua river at Clinton with the reservoir in process of construction in Southborough and Marlborough has been begun, and the work so far advanced as to leave little doubt of its completion early in the year 1898. This reservoir will be substantially completed by the close of the present year, and early in the year 1898 the waters of the south branch of the Nashua river can be stored in this new reservoir and be added to the existing supply of the metropolitan district. The larger part of the work of laying one of the two projected lines of 48 inch main pipes from the Chestnut Hill Reservoir has been already accomplished, and it is expected during the present year to complete the connection of all the cities and towns in the district with the Chestnut Hill Reservoir. Much has been done preliminary to the actual building of the great dam at Clinton and the construction of the reservoir on the Nashua river, which is to submerge very considerable portions of the territory of the towns of Boylston and West Boylston. The fuller investigations have developed no unforeseen obstacle to the completion of the great scheme adopted by the legislature of the year 1895, for furnishing to the city of Boston and the cities and towns within the ten-mile radius an adequate supply of excellent water for many years to come, with ample opportunities for extensions from time to time to provide for the needs of the more remote future. The serious apprehensions occasioned by a light rainfall during the past summer, and the approach which several of the cities and towns have already made to the limit of their present possible sources of supply, have anew demonstrated the need of this great work, — the greatest single enterprise ever undertaken by the Commonwealth.

It is to be remembered that the cost of construction is to fall eventually upon the various cities and towns constituting the district, and that the Commonwealth will be fully reimbursed by these municipalities for all its expenditures. The latter will, on the other hand, profit by thus obtaining water not only in ample abundance but better in quality and at rates lower than the present cost, and much less than would result if the municipalities were to seek different sources for their growing needs and to construct independent works.

Two important takings of land have been made this year by the metropolitan park commissioners under the boulevard act of 1894: the first being of lands and existing streets for the Blue Hills parkway connecting with the Boston park system at Mattapan Square ; the other of lands for the completion of Middlesex Fells parkway. These acquirements provide for easy approaches by broad avenues to each of the great woods reservations of the metropolitan system. Their total length is 8.97 miles.

The reservations acquired under the park act of 1893 remain practically the same as last year. The total area of the reservations now under the control of the commissioners is nearly 7,000 acres.

The funds appropriated to the use of this board aggregate, under the park act, $3,300,000, and under the boulevard act, $1,000,000.

This amount, together with all future additions thereto, is ultimately to be apportioned among and borne by the several cities and towns within the district. The commissioners recommend the acquisition of additional reservations along the banks of Charles river, upon the shores of Quincy Bay and at Winthrop. Owing to the increasing population and consequent increasing values of all lands within the district I think the ultimate territorial limits of the park system should be reached at an early day, and that the several parts of it should be rendered reasonably accessible, and should be made safe by an adequate police force, both against disorderly use and against forest fires. But the magnitude of the present and future cost, the burden of which is not yet felt by the municipalities concerned, may properly suggest moderation in the elaborate and expensive development of the areas reserved.

STATE INSTITUTIONS.

The charitable, penal and reformatory institutions of the state I believe to be generally well and humanely administered. It is true however that there is a lack of uniformity of system in the responsible control of these institutions, and, although this may not as yet have proved in any fatal degree detrimental to good administration, yet, so long as improvement is possible in either system or method, it is the duty of the state to strive with all its zeal and all its wisdom to attain this improvement. The legislature of 1896 provided for the appointment of a commission to investigate the charitable and reformatory interests and institutions of the Commonwealth and to report thereon before the first day of February in the year 1897. It is not my purpose to forestall the recommendations of this commission, nor need I ask for them your considerate attention. Humanity and interest alike will cause you to weigh carefully whatever conclusions the report of the commissioners may present.

The opening of the Medfield insane asylum in May last, and the occupancy of a portion of its buildings by patients transferred to it from the other lunatic hospitals, relieved in a considerable degree the overcrowding of those institutions.

Under the direction of the board of trustees of the Massachusetts hospital for epileptics three new buildings are rapidly approaching completion on the site of the old state primary school at Monson.

An elevated and healthful site in the town of Rutland has been secured for the Massachusetts hospital for consumptives and tubercular patients, and the work of building is well advanced. In my opinion the title of this institution should be changed to one less repellent and discouraging to its future inmates.

At the state prison and at the reformatory prison for women the number of inmates has increased, but the cost of support has been reduced. The number at the Massachusetts reformatory is, on the other hand, less than in the previous year. The industries maintained in these prisons show a general improvement both in the amount and quality of goods produced, and a corresponding increase in the pecuniary result. The problem of providing industrial occupation in the county houses of correction is however not yet solved, and their condition cannot in this respect be considered satisfactory.

Difficulty and embarrassment have arisen in the application of the so-called parole law, and its benefit to the prison in its present form is open to some doubt. The principle of the law in holding out encouragement and reward for good conduct is excellent, and should be retained in any amendment or redraft of the act which your wisdom may suggest.

PUBLIC EDUCATION.

In 1894 the legislature authorized the establishment of four normal schools in addition to the six then in existence. Of these new schools that at Fitchburg took possession of its new building in December, 1896. The North Adams school will be open in its new building in February, 1897. The Lowell and Barnstable buildings are nearly completed, and the schools will be organized in September, 1897.

In 1896, for the first time in the history of our normal schools, candidates for admission were required not only to be graduates of high schools but also to pass examinations in high school as well as in elementary subjects. This policy, it is believed, not only will improve the high schools, but also will enable the normal schools to place increased stress on the purely professional side of their work, and thus increase its efficiency.

Of the 12,275 teachers employed in the state during the last school year 4,540 have attended normal schools. Of this number 3,903 are normal school graduates. The great need of our schools to-day is competent and well-trained teachers. I hope you will carefully consider the expediency of setting a time in the not distant future after which no person shall be employed as a teacher in the public schools without some minimum of professional training.

The supervision of our public schools by superintendents has been productive of much good. This policy has developed in a voluntary way under state encouragement, until now it extends to 94 per cent. of our population. The limits of its voluntary extension have been nearly reached. A policy so overwhelmingly indorsed by public sentiment may well be made universal and permanent.

The vast sums of money annually expended upon our public schools,—the amount was $11,829,191 the past year,—as well as the noble purposes sought through such expenditure, justify extraordinary pains in bringing the schools under wise and constant directorship, and in securing for them the best teachers, whose zeal and freshness of interest and method should be stimulated in every possible way.

THE NAUTICAL TRAINING SCHOOL.

The nautical training school, although controlled by a special board of commissioners, is in reality a part of the educational system of the state. It is conducted at a necessarily considerable cost per capita, for the purpose of furnishing to a limited number of young men a thorough technical education in seamanship and navigation, as well as in the ordinary branches of study. In time of national emergency the naval service of the United States would doubtless secure from the graduates of this school a most valuable class of well-trained and well-educated seamen. To a seaboard state like Massachusetts, which has a history and we trust a future of maritime achievement and prowess, the importance of fostering this department of effort need not be argued. Recognizing this importance the national government has placed a vessel at the disposal of the Commonwealth, without further cost than that of maintenance and repair, and details from the naval service a sufficient number of officers, whose half pay is supplemented by salaries from the treasury of the state. The school is, in my opinion, performing successfully, and with such economy as may wisely be exercised, the purposes for which it is maintained. The cadets who finish the full course of study find ready employment at good pay in the merchant marine as capable engineers or navigators. This service is one of some hardship, and the preparatory training, if it is to serve its purpose, must be such as to invigorate rather than to enervate. The summer cruise of the "Enterprise" to foreign ports is intended to afford an opportunity to put into practical operation the knowledge of seamanship which has been acquired from text-books during the winter months. On her recent cruise a form of throat trouble of obscure origin broke out, and, although the cases were limited in number and generally not severe in character, two deaths directly traceable to it occurred at about the time of her reaching this port. This sad occurrence naturally led to a formal investigation by the commissioners of certain charges of insufficient food and official misconduct preferred by the father of one of the young men who died. As the result of this investigation the commissioners feel warranted not only in exonerating from blame but in highly commending the general management and conduct of the commander and other officers of the "Enterprise," with one exception, and this commendation I believe to be deserved. In the exceptional case referred to it is cause for profound regret that any officer holding the commission of the United States, and placed in a position of so great responsibility and influence over one hundred young men, should have subjected himself to the degree and character of censure visited upon him in the report. This officer has been detached from the service of the Commonwealth.

TEMPERANCE.

I think that no well-informed person can doubt that the cause of temperance gains steadily, although the gain may be slow. Legislation is restrictive, supervision is more strict than formerly, intoxication is less generally condoned as an incident of sociability or a pardonable weakness, and is more clearly seen to be a vice in itself and the prolific parent of crime and wretchedness. It is not probable that our community will tolerate any reversal of this progress. Public opinion, if disinclined to carry legislation far in advance of probable enforcement, will yet be ready from time to time to make such further advances as sound discretion and experience may suggest. In the immediate present it seems to me wiser to concentrate enlightened effort upon the more thorough enforcement of existing legislation than to venture inadvisedly upon new experiments. Local option, on the whole, has proved reasonably successful. When a municipality votes in favor of license the maximum number of licenses that may be issued therein is limited in a fixed ratio to the population. Within this limit the determination of the number and kind of licenses, the locality and other conditions, is vested in the discretion of a board, either elected by the people or appointed by some other authority. This discretion should not be controlled by the wishes or probable profits of those desiring to sell liquor, but by the interests of the public. The voting unit is the municipality, and while, in certain sections of cities where opposition is strong, just so many licenses and no more should be granted as will prevent illegal selling and satisfy the demand of the locality, this exclusion or rigid limitation of saloons in certain wards should not have the effect of unduly multiplying them in other wards. There is no part of a great city which is not residential, and the interests of all should be equally regarded.

THE MILITIA.

It is gratifying to receive the favorable reports of the officers of the United States Army detailed annually by the national government to inspect the militia of the Commonwealth. These officers are men of distinction and wide military experience, and may be supposed to be free from local or personal bias. They commend highly the personnel and discipline of our militia, and its excellent appearance in drill and equipment. From my own observation as well as the reports of others I am assured that in the main an excellent spirit pervades the several commands, and that the efficiency of the troops is constantly improving. When breaches of discipline occur they are promptly investigated and punished. In the community at large, and still more in the officers' quarters and in the tents of the privates, the old idea of the militiaman, whose drill was a farce, who regarded camp duty as a time for boyish pranks, and to whom intoxication in others if not in his own person was a common incident, is giving place to the idea of a citizen soldier, well-drilled and well-behaved, with a pride in the good repute of his command, and, as should be the case, himself setting the example of orderly citizenship. In the several organizations there is noticeable a spirit of enthusiasm and generous emulation, and this is likely to be continued and strengthened so long as in the conduct of all regimental affairs the best good of the command shall be the controlling factor, rather than personal or social considerations.

TAXATION.

The modern community is called upon to do much for its citizen. It must secure his person and property from violence, and so far as possible from accident; it must guard his health against certain insidious dangers arising from contagion, impure water, diseased meat, and other sources which the individual citizen would be powerless to resist; it must provide him with public parks and public libraries; it must exercise a careful scrutiny over the institutions in which he deposits his savings, and must see that private corporations are not fraudulently established or conducted; it must insist that quasi-public corporations, which receive exclusive privileges, shall make an adequate return to the community in the excellence and cheapness of their service, or in a direct payment for the franchises they receive; it must maintain public schools, courts of justice, and unhappily also prisons, reformatories, almshouses and lunatic hospitals. I have enumerated but a part of the functions of the modern state. With the progress of invention and the greater complexity of social life it is probable that these functions will increase in the future. How best to raise by taxation the vast sums of money required to meet these demands of a progressive civilization is a problem of great difficulty, which has not yet found its ultimate solution. Under any method the burden must be a heavy one, and the individual on whom it rests is more apt to regard the weight of the tax than the adequacy of the equivalent which he receives. Any system, however sound or complete in theory, is condemned when it is so difficult of enforcement that any considerable number of those justly liable escape their share of taxation. So far as such injustice exists taxation becomes oppression. It is doubtful whether absolute equality can be attained, but in my opinion it is possible to approach it more nearly than is at present accomplished. Simplicity and equality of incidence—and this equality of incidence may be reached either directly or indirectly—are more important than theory or logic. The system now in operation in this Commonwealth is regarded by many as unsatisfactory. It either goes too far or does not go far enough. It aims to reach all property, of whatever nature and wherever situate, the ownership of which is held within this Commonwealth. This it admittedly fails to accomplish. It is true also that the varied investments of the man of large means are more likely to secure immunity from taxation than the more localized property of the man of moderate estate. Recognizing the wide-spread dissatisfaction with the operation of our present laws of taxation, the great complexity and difficulty of the problem, and the vast importance of a just and rational system of taxation to the content and welfare of our people, as well as to the commercial and industrial prosperity of our Commonwealth, the legislature of 1896 wisely provided for the appointment of a commission “to obtain, collate and report facts concerning taxation, present a summary of conclusions to be drawn therefrom, and suggest any changes advisable in the laws of the Commonwealth relating to taxation,” the final report of the commission to be presented not later than the first day of October, 1897. In making the appointments upon this commission I endeavored to select men who should fairly represent different interests and occupations in the community, but who were not to my knowledge publicly committed as advocates either of the present system or of any substitute therefor, believing that these should be rather heard as witnesses by the commission than themselves constitute the commission. If this commission shall succeed in making such wise and just recommendations as shall result in rendering taxation in Massachusetts more equitable and less onerous it will be a service of great value to the Commonwealth. Until their report is rendered you will probably consider it unwise to make any important changes in the laws now in operation.

STREET RAILWAYS.

The essential difference between street railway companies and railroad corporations lies in the fact that the former have the right to use, in common with other citizens, the public highways, whereas the latter have the exclusive use of their road beds. In contemplation of law this right to use the public ways is granted such companies on the sole ground that it is for the "interest of the public" that they be allowed so to do; this phrase recurring repeatedly in the statutes authorizing boards of aldermen in cities and the selectmen of towns to grant, refuse, extend and revoke locations. In theory therefore the granting of a location is an accommodation to the public, and not a privilege or gift to the railway company; the franchise being granted solely for the convenience of all the citizens as a method of affording cheap and convenient transportation over public ways. Upon this theory, if it is found that the right of thus using the streets is profitable beyond a moderate return upon the capital actually invested, it is just to require that the fares be reduced or the service improved. If this remedy were proved in practice to be easy of application it would afford the best solution of a vexed problem. But this has not been found to be the case, and, in consequence, contrary to the theory of our existing law, these grants have often proved of great pecuniary value to the companies receiving them. This has led to a general demand that a direct return shall be made to the treasury of the municipality, either by a fixed rental or tax, by a toll upon the cars using the streets, or by a percentage of receipts or profits. This can be justified only upon a different theory; namely, that a valuable right is granted to the company, and therefore is taken away from the public. If such a direct return is exacted it seems just, on the other hand, that the company, under a proper agreement, should, for a limited period, have the assurance that its franchise should not be revoked through caprice, unreasonable hostility, or the lure of a higher bid from would-be competitors. It is possible that in some municipalities one of these conflicting theories might be more acceptable, whereas in others the public convenience might be better served by adoption of the other. Under existing legislation there is no authority to impose any tax whatever. I recommend that this authority be granted.

The original theory of the street railways doubtless contemplated the granting of locations in the streets of a single town, or at most in the streets of two adjacent towns. But the improvements in electrical appliances have led to formation of companies for operating lines of considerable length, passing through the territory of several towns. In these cases, and perhaps in all cases, it is a question whether there should not be the right of appeal from the local municipal board upon questions of public convenience, to some higher tribunal, such as the board of railroad commissioners.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

Chapter 420 of the Acts of 1890 is the principal act under which the work of abolishing grade crossings is now being conducted; but there have been many special acts in addition thereto. Under these several acts, with three important exceptions, the usual apportionment of the cost is as follows:—The Commonwealth pays 25 per cent., the cities and towns 10 per cent., and the railroads 65 per cent. This work upon which the state has entered is of great magnitude, and now constitutes one of the principal items of its expenditures, the net outlay on the part of the Commonwealth having already reached the sum of $2,163,457. This large sum is wisely spent in making more secure the lives of our citizens.

THE BOSTON TRANSIT COMMISSION.

The Boston subway is being constructed by a commission of five members, two appointed by the governor of the Commonwealth, and three by the mayor of the city of Boston.

The city of Boston owns the subway and pays for its construction.

Work upon this great public improvement in our capital city was begun on the 28th of March, 1895, and about one half of the total work has been done.

The city of Boston, by the Boston transit commission, acting under the authority vested in it by the legislature, has lately granted to the West End Street Railway Company for the term of twenty years, subject to certain reservations, restrictions and limitations, the entire use of the subway for locations of the railway tracks of said company, and for other purposes expressly enumerated in the contract. It is estimated that the annual payments required by this contract will be sufficient to meet the interest on the debt incurred for construction, and also to establish a sinking fund which will pay the principal of the bonds at their maturity, thus avoiding any addition to the tax levy in consequence of the building of the subway.

This contract has received the required approval of the board of railroad commissioners. The provisions of the contract appear to be fair to the company, and at the same time adequately to protect the rights and interests of the city of Boston and of the public. The action of the commission in placing the entire control of the subway in the hands of a single responsible corporation meets with my approval, as the best means of insuring safe and efficient service.

It is expected that before the end of the session upon which you are now entering the subway will be open for traffic from the entrance on the Public Garden to Park street, and that Tremont street will be relieved of all Boylston street cars which now reverse at the Granary burying ground. Upon the completion of the subway to the northern station, not only the cars but the tracks will be removed, as required by law, from Boylston and Tremont streets between Park Square and Scollay Square. Other streets adjacent to the subway within prescribed limits may also be cleared of such tracks as in the opinion of the commission are no longer necessary.

The Boston transit commission was further required to build a new bridge across the Charles river between the Charles river bridge and the Warren bridge. The location and design of this bridge have been determined and have received the approval of the harbor and land commissioners. The United States, by the secretary of war, thereto duly authorized, has issued its license, and the work is in progress. It is expected that the bridge will be open for use by the close of the year 1898.

Until the full benefit is realized from these two great constructive works it will, in my opinion, be unwise to burden with new servitudes the principal streets in the congested district of the city.

SALARIES.

During the past three or four years there has been presented at each session of the legislature a large number of petitions for the increase of certain salaries paid to public officers, the number of such petitions averaging thirty or forty each year. The legislature has shown a disposition to regard favorably certain of these petitions, and in 1895 passed several acts increasing salaries, all of which were vetoed by my immediate predecessor, on the ground that the time was not opportune for such action, while admitting however, "that many inequalities are to be found in the scale of salaries as now established in the various departments of the Commonwealth, which ought at some suitable time to be adjusted or corrected." It is true that during the past years of industrial depression and uncertainty the man dependent upon a fixed salary has relatively fared better, especially in view of the cheapened necessities of life, than the professional or business man. I do not think that the improved conditions of trade and business would yet warrant, or that the people would approve, any very considerable increase in the salary list of the Commonwealth. But if the legislature of this year shall determine wisely to deal with certain cases where the inadequacy of the salary is plainly manifest I believe that the justice of their action would be conceded by all. In a limited number of cases, which should receive careful consideration, the duties and responsibility of an officer have been largely increased by recent legislative action. The subject should be approached by the proper committee with keen scrutiny, with a due regard to wise economy, and with a constant recognition of the truth that in applications for increase of salary, as in applications for appointment to office, the importunity of the petitioner or his friends seldom furnishes the best test of desert.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The information collected by the state board of health from all portions of the state shows that the past year has been free from the unusual prevalence of disease.

The state of Massachusetts has for a succession of years made liberal appropriations for the work of its health board, and the returns are satisfactory. Investigations carried on in the laboratories under its direction have given the world a better knowledge than it before possessed of the qualities of water and the best means for securing its purity, and of the means for so treating sewage that it shall cease to be offensive and harmful. The work of examining articles of food and drugs, and supervising the execution of the laws to prevent their adulteration, has been diligently carried on.

A great saving in life has resulted from the distribution of the antitoxin of diphtheria, prepared in the state laboratory. Inquiries into the laws which govern the origin and spread of the preventable diseases have been actively carried on, and the results have been from time to time made public.

Special investigations have been made during the year with regard to a system of sewerage for Salem and Peabody, and with regard to the sanitary condition of the valley of the Neponset river. The conclusions of the board upon these important subjects, which necessarily affect many lives and much property, will be laid before you.

The improvement of the Concord and Sudbury rivers has been brought to a satisfactory conclusion within the appropriation made for that purpose.

TUBERCULOSIS IN CATTLE.

I commend to the most careful consideration of your honorable bodies the question of the eradication or limitation of this disease in cattle. The conditions affecting its presence in cattle and its transmission to man are to be determined by scientific investigation, and in the countries of Europe, as well as in our own land, are better understood than when the danger was first realized. There can be no doubt that in the advanced stage of the disease, especially when it has attacked the udder, the milk as well as the meat of the animal so diseased may convey the tubercle bacillus, and therefore become a grave danger when taken into the human system. If sterilization were universal the danger from milk so affected would be removed. In the earlier stages of the disease the danger is regarded by many competent authorities as slight, but it must be remembered that the tendency of the disease is constantly to advance. The existing law restricts the use of tuberculin to cattle brought into the Commonwealth from any point without its limits, and to cattle held at certain quarantine stations, but provides that it may be used, on the consent in writing of the owner, upon animals in any other portion of the state, and upon animals condemned as tuberculous upon physical examination.

This restriction expires by limitation on the first of June, 1897. The community is yearly becoming better informed on this subject and therefore better prepared to adopt measures which shall be inspired neither by an exaggerated alarm on the one hand nor on the other hand by an unreasoning opposition to necessary sanitary precautions. With the co-operation of local boards of health, and with the dissemination of accurate information on the subject by the board of agriculture and other agencies, it may be expected that the action of the state will be reinforced by the normal, healthy pressure of customer upon dealer, in demanding a general improvement in the sanitary condition of dairies, and their immunity from this dread disease through the application of this test, undoubtedly the most reliable yet discovered. Whatever general line of policy your wisdom may adopt I ask you to consider two suggestions:—Is it right or wise that, as now, the state should pay full value for animals that have reached the most advanced stage of general tuberculosis and udder tuberculosis? Such animals should be sought out by means of a thorough, periodic inspection, and slaughtered as being not only worthless, but a source of danger to the rest of the herd as well as to the community. At present the owner has no motive to check the disease in its earlier stages. If compensation were graded according to the condition of the animal as revealed by autopsy the owner would have a direct interest in purging his herd of infected animals before they become worthless. Secondly, I think the commissioners should in any event have sufficient means at their disposal to enable them to test with tuberculin all cattle the owners of which request such inspection.

THE GYPSY MOTH.

Whether the state shall continue its present method in dealing with this pest is one of the questions of great difficulty which will be presented to you. The entire extermination of the insect by the present agencies may appear well-nigh impossible, yet it seems to have been proved that its ravages may be restricted in locality and diminished in amount. It is clear that it cannot safely be left to be dealt with by private effort. Better results may in the future be attained by improved insecticides, but many believe that the only final remedy lies in the discovery of some parasite which shall prey upon this fell destroyer of vegetation. In both of these directions the work of scientific investigation is being pursued, with results that afford some degree of encouragement. Efforts in these directions should be stimulated rather than relaxed. Your honorable bodies will doubtless appropriate such sum as they may deem wise to expend for the protection of the community against this imported pest; but whatever this sum may be I deem it my duty emphatically to urge that an adequate portion of it should be made available before the young caterpillars are hatched, for at this time it can be expended with the greatest economy and best results.

TRUST COMPANIES.

I concur with my immediate predecessor in asking the legislature carefully to consider whether restrictive legislation is not needed relative to trust companies. These companies transact a general banking business, and in addition thereto receive and manage trust funds on decrees of courts or by bequests of individuals. In acting as such trustees they are not required to furnish sureties on their official bonds. The number of these companies is rapidly increasing, and special charters for their incorporation have been granted by recent legislatures with considerable freedom. Owing to the importance and peculiar nature of the functions which they perform it is probable that equal accommodation to the public and a greater degree of security are to be gained by the operation of a moderate number of strong companies in the centres of population, rather than of a multiplicity of companies scattered through the smaller communities, which may not afford a proper field for the business they conduct. It would seem possible to frame a general act permitting the incorporation of such companies under proper restrictions, and subject to the approval of the savings banks commissioners, and this course would relieve the legislature from the importunity of individual petitioners; but in any event I suggest extreme caution in granting charters, to the end that the public may be properly guarded from speculative and insecure financial methods, and in my opinion it will be found in the long run unwise to grant such charters except in cases where a considerable capital is ready to be embarked in the enterprise.

STOCK SPECULATION.

The frequency with which those intrusted with the funds of others prove faithless to their trust, and the wide-spread loss and distress consequent upon their acts, may well suggest the inquiry whether it is possible, through legislation, to interpose additional safeguards for the protection both of the individual and of the community. In many cases the criminal act is directly traced to speculation in stocks, and at the outset there is often an entire absence of criminal intent. I ask you to consider:—First, whether, in the case of state and municipal officers who have the custody of public funds, stock gambling—that is, the buying or selling of stocks on margin—should not be forbidden by law, under proper penalty, or be made by statute cause for removal from office:—Secondly, whether this principle may profitably be extended to treasurers of quasi-public and private corporations, and to trustees under private instruments.

THE BOARD OF ARBITRATION AND CONCILIATION.

The past year has fortunately not been marked by any protracted strike or lockout in this state, and the work of this board has been of about the average amount. The board notes that the proportion of cases settled through formal arbitration, as distinguished from conciliation, has been somewhat larger than in former years. Under the former of these methods the two parties to a controversy submit their differences to the board, and agree in advance to abide by its decision. Under the second method the board tenders its good offices to the contending parties, and the final agreement when reached is the act of the parties themselves, and not, as in the other case, the decree of the board. This increase in the cases of arbitration would appear to indicate that the board is gaining in the confidence both of employers and of organized labor.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

Massachusetts adheres to the system, early adopted, of opening the classified civil service of the state and of her cities to all citizens, upon merit tested by open competitive examination. There are now included in the classified service over 6,000 public positions, with an aggregate annual pay of over $5,000,000. The classification has been gradually extended, and quite recently, with the approval of the acting-governor and council, a considerable addition has been made, under which the civil service act and rules will apply to several new and important classes of municipal officers and employees.

The civil service commissioners will report to you the recently approved amendments of the rules intended to give full force and effect to the veteran preference act of last year. The act has lately been declared constitutional, in the opinion of a majority of the justices of the supreme judicial court; and the commissioners express the desire, in which I concur, that, inasmuch as the long controversy in the legislature and before the courts has been settled by the enactment of a law giving, within the limits of the constitution, due recognition to the just claim of the veterans to be preferred in appointment to public office, the act and the new rules under it may be regarded as the final legislation upon the subject.

HIGHWAY COMMISSION.

The work of the Massachusetts highway commission has made excellent progress during the past year. About 47 miles of road have been built, making a total of about 109 miles completed under the direction of the commission. These state roads are everywhere looked upon as furnishing the standard of excellence in highway construction, and in addition to the influence they exert upon local authorities they have an educational effect beyond the limits of this Commonwealth, for they are annually visited by delegates from all parts of the United States, who are anxious to copy our methods and secure the results of our experience. That this department of state work is highly appreciated by our people is shown by the increasing demand in every part of the Commonwealth for the extension of highways already constructed, and for the beginning of new lines. It should be remembered that the commissioners are required by statute to distribute the outlay as equally as possible among the several counties of the state, and that the county benefited pays 25 per cent. of the amount expended within its territory, while the remaining 75 per cent. is borne by the Commonwealth. I think the best results will be attained by the continuance of the work on a scale of expenditure which shall not vary greatly from year to year. This would enable the commissioners to plan for the future with greater certainty, and thus to secure the best results at the least cost. With a view to the most economical expenditure of whatever sum is appropriated it is important that it should be available at the opening of the road-building season, when the days are longer and the weather less variable than in the autumn, to which season the work must otherwise necessarily be prolonged.

STATE HOUSE.

The question of the preservation or destruction of the Bulfinch state house, which had so long been under discussion, was determined at the last session of the general court; and by the action then taken it was decreed that this historic structure, dear to our people for its beauty and its associations, should be made permanent and practically fireproof. The sum of $375,000 was appropriated for this purpose. The work has been placed in the hands of experienced and skilful architects, and the contracts have been made at such figures that there can be little doubt that a very considerable part of this amount will not be needed.

The bills approved by the state house construction commissioners up to January 1, for construction of the extension, including the intermediate portion or Bryant part, amount to $2,989,084.25, and for Memorial Hall to $13,477.75.

The work upon the intermediate portion is nearly completed, and the whole structure erected under the charge of the commissioners is thoroughly built and furnishes excellent offices for the several state departments. Memorial Hall cannot be completed until the easterly wing of the Bulfinch front is again ready for the occupancy of the senate. The houses now in use upon land acquired by the Commonwealth, bounded by Mt. Vernon, Beacon and Bowdoin streets, will undoubtedly be needed until all work of construction or repair upon the state house shall cease.

PROVINCE LAWS.

The legislature of 1896 declined to make any appropriation beyond the 30th of June for the continued publication of the Province Laws, a work which was undertaken by the Commonwealth in 1867 and has been continuously prosecuted since then, with the result that seven volumes have already been published, while one additional volume is in the hands of the state printers in a completed condition. The total probable number has been estimated at thirteen. This failure of the legislature to make provision for the continuance of the work was avowedly due to dissatisfaction with the slow progress made, and a determination to conclude the editorship then in control of the publication. The acting-governor and council, in obedience to what they conceived to be the will of the legislature, thus expressed, brought the work to an end when the appropriation previously made was exhausted, and the editor ceased his official duties on the 1st of July. It is true that this work has proved a costly one to the Commonwealth, and that it has been protracted far beyond the expectation even of those versed in historical labor; but it is fair to say that this delay has been due not to any neglect of duty or indisposition to labor on the part of the recent editor, but rather to an extreme manifestation in him of the antiquarian spirit, which has urged him to an elaboration of note and comment which to many has appeared excessive, and which an opinion obtained by the council from the attorney-general declares to have been unauthorized by the original act providing for the publication. There can be no doubt that the completed volumes contain the results of the most minute and searching historical investigation. The Commonwealth will not be willing permanently to leave the work in its present incomplete condition. Under the opinion of the attorney-general as to the true scope of the original act the remaining volumes can without question be issued at a greatly accelerated rate. I ask you to determine how and through what agency this important historical work shall be continued.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE AND BIENNIAL ELECTIONS.

In 1895 all persons qualified to vote for school committee were given an opportunity to vote upon the question, "Is it expedient that municipal suffrage be granted to women?"

In 1896 two amendments to the Constitution, establishing biennial elections of state officers and of members of the general court, were submitted to the people for their ratification and adoption.

On both of these important questions, which have demanded so much time of your predecessors, the decision of the people was so emphatic as to afford little encouragement for an early renewal of the discussion.

Gentlemen of the senate and house of representatives : You are summoned to a high duty. You are the recipients of signal honor. You hold the credentials of the people of Massachusetts to legislate for their welfare. This is no mean commission, nor is the responsibility it entails light. The fame of Massachusetts among enlightened Commonwealths for wise and progressive legislation has been won by your predecessors. May that fame receive new lustre at your hands. The volume of legislation is a poor criterion of its necessity or wisdom. The sagacious legislator will deem it as much his duty to reject unnecessary legislation as to favor that which he deems important. It is difficult to believe that five months of legislative session and seven hundred printed pages of acts and resolves are annually necessary. A shortened session and a reduced blue book would not be unwelcome to our people.

The general court and the governor are to work together for a common purpose, — the good government of the Commonwealth, — but a separate responsibility rests upon each. Under the blessing of Almighty God may both be endued with wisdom and understanding, and may grace be given them to execute justice and to maintain truth.

SPECIAL MESSAGES.

THE FOLLOWING SPECIAL COMMUNICATIONS WERE MADE BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR TO THE LEGISLATURE
DURING THE ANNUAL SESSION.

[To the senate and house of representatives, January 11, 1897.]

I have the honor to present, in compliance with chapter 50 of the resolves of 1860, a report of the forty-seven pardons issued by the governor and council during the year just closed.

Of the number thus released seven were in the state prison, twenty-eight in houses of correction, seven in the Massachusetts reformatory, and five in the reformatory prison for women. Sickness was the controlling reason for the discharge of thirteen, five of whom have since died.

ROGER WOLCOTT.

No. 1. ANTONIO ARDITO. Convicted of murder, second degree, Supreme Judicial Court, Suffolk county, Dec. 15, 1879. Sentenced to state prison for life. Pardoned Jan. 3, 1896. The details of the crime it is not necessary to state, except to say that it was believed to have been done under much provocation, and under the influence of liquor given him in the house where the crime was committed. Ardito, who had been in this country but a few weeks when arrested, was unable to speak a word of our language, and through an interpreter was advised to plead guilty. His two accomplices, who received the same sentence, had been pardoned. The pardon committee believed that the granting of the pardon would be no detriment to justice. He was released upon condition that he leave the country, never to return. He sailed for Italy immediately upon his release.

Pardons.

No. 2. PETER CORRIGAN. Convicted of breaking and entering a railroad car, Superior Court, Middlesex county, June 20, 1895. Sentenced to state prison for three years. Pardoned Jan. 17, 1896, upon the recommendation of the warden and prison physician. The prisoner was suffering from gastric ulcer and cirrhosis, with little prospect of recovery.

No. 3. ARCHIBALD E. F. BUCKNER. Convicted of larceny from a building, Superior Court, Middlesex county, Oct. 21, 1895. Sentenced to the house of correction for one year. Pardoned Jan. 30, 1896, upon the recommendation of the prison physician. Buckner was suffering with pulmonary tuberculosis, with no hope of recovery.

No. 4. JOSEPH WARD, alias WINSTON. Convicted of larceny from the person and attempted larceny from the person, Superior Court, Suffolk county, April term, 1895. Sentenced to state prison for five years. Pardoned Jan. 30, 1896, upon the recommendation of district attorney Stevens and inspector of police Knox, on the ground of innocence. These two officials, who were the prosecuting officers, have since become satisfied that it was another party, closely resembling Ward, who committed the offence. Ward's bad reputation, as well as his resemblance to the guilty party, contributed to the mistake.

No. 5. WILLIAM G. BENNETT. Convicted of vagrancy, District Court, Northern Berkshire, Aug. 9, 1895. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned Feb. 1, 1896, upon the recommendation of the commissioners of prisons, who had carefully investigated the case and learned that Bennett, who was a young man of good family in New York, was arrested while sleeping in a barn with some tramps. Being young, well-dressed and without visible means of support, he was considered a vagrant and sent to the reformatory. As has since been learned he was in no sense a vagrant. His sentence was thought to have been too severe.

No. 6. MARY REGAN. Convicted of drunkenness, Western District Court, Hampden county, May 14, 1895. Sentenced to the reformatory prison for women for one year. Pardoned Feb. 13, 1896. The prisoner had a ^{Pardons.} young child seriously ill with scarlet fever. The father was unable to meet the expense of a proper nurse. Upon the recommendation of the selectmen of Westfield, where the offence was committed, as she had but thirty days more to serve, after deducting the time for good behavior, a pardon was granted on the ground of humanity.

No. 7. JOHN JOYCE. Convicted of larceny, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Feb. 11, 1895. Sentenced to the house of correction for eighteen months. Pardoned Feb. 13, 1896. Joyce was in an advanced stage of pulmonary consumption. He was pardoned that he might die at home. He died a short time after his release.

No. 8. ALEXANDER E. H. WALKER. Convicted of violating the license law, Superior Court, Middlesex county, Dec. 13, 1895. Sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred dollars. Pardoned Feb. 17, 1895, upon the recommendation of the district attorney who prosecuted the case and the city marshal of Newton. This was Walker's first offence. He was unable to pay the fine and in default of payment had been held for two months in the house of correction. His family were entirely without means of support. It was the unanimous opinion of all concerned that justice had been answered by the punishment already served.

No. 9. CHARLES J. PARSLow. Convicted of manslaughter, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Oct. 23, 1895. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned Feb. 20, 1896. The district attorney and the commissioners of prisons were satisfied that the crime committed by Parslow was entirely accidental, and that he had been sufficiently punished for an act of criminal carelessness.

No. 10. GEORGE FLIEGE. Convicted of larceny, Municipal Court, Boston, Feb. 11, 1896. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned Feb. 20, 1896, upon the recommendation of the judge before whom the case was tried, who certified that had all the facts regarding this case been known at the time of trial he would have allowed him to go without sentence. Owing to a misunderstanding the friends of the prisoner failed to appear at the trial, and consequently he was tried without counsel. The prisoner, who was but eighteen years of age, had always borne an unblemished reputation.

No. 11. LOUIS PEARLSTEIN. Convicted of receiving stolen goods, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Dec. 2, 1894. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned Feb. 27, 1896, upon the recommendation of the district attorney. The pardon committee were of the opinion that justice has been satisfied by the punishment already suffered, as there were mitigating circumstances connected with the case, which, if presented at the trial, would undoubtedly have lessened the sentence.

No. 12. JAMES CHENEY, alias HENRY SPROUL. Convicted of receiving stolen goods, Superior Court, Middlesex county, June 11, 1895. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned March 19, 1896, upon the recommendation of the prison physician, on the ground of incurable illness.

No. 13. PATRICK BUCKLEY. Convicted of drunkenness, Superior Court, Essex county, Oct. 26, 1895. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned March 26, 1896, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, the mayor and all the city officials at Beverly.

No. 14. LOUIS BOWCOCK. Convicted of arson, Superior Court, Bristol county, Feb. 12, 1894. Sentenced to state prison for five years. Pardoned April 2, 1896, upon the recommendation of the mayor and other leading citizens of Fall River, and the district attorney. The prisoner was without counsel at the trial. The burning was technical rather than real. Nobody came forward at the time of the sentence to say a word for him. If they had done so he would undoubtedly have been placed on probation or received a much lighter sentence.

No. 15. WILLIAM DOUCETTE. Convicted of larceny, Police Court, Lawrence, March 23, 1895. Sentenced to the house of correction for two and one half years. ^{Pardons.} Pardoned April 2, 1896, upon the recommendation of the physician and master of the house of correction, that he might die at home. He was incurably ill with tuberculosis.

No. 16. OLIVE TAYLOR. Convicted of drunkenness, Police Court, Lowell, Oct. 25, 1895. Sentenced to the reformatory prison for women for fifteen months. Pardoned April 16, 1896, upon the recommendation of the commissioners of prisons. This was the prisoner's first offence. She was but seventeen years of age. The probation officer was away at the time of sentence; if he had been present the commissioners were satisfied she would have been placed on probation.

No. 17. ABRAHAM CATLAN. Convicted of receiving stolen goods, Superior Court, Suffolk county, January term, 1896. Sentenced to the house of correction for one year. Pardoned April 16, 1896. The district attorney, after a careful examination of the evidence, had become convinced that Catlan did not know that the goods were stolen when he received them, and would not probably have been convicted if he had told the truth at the time of trial.

No. 18. NELLIE DONOHUE. Convicted of being idle and disorderly, Central District Court, Worcester county, Jan. 6, 1896. Sentenced to the reformatory prison for women for one year. Pardoned April 16, 1896, upon the recommendation of judge Utley, who imposed the sentence. It was believed that she was innocent of the crime for which she was sentenced. She was arrested with other inmates of a disorderly house, but it has since been learned that she was employed as a domestic, and had nothing to do with the proceedings of the house.

No. 19. ALEXIS PELKEY. Convicted of assault, Second District Court, Bristol county, Dec. 23, 1895. Sentenced to the house of correction for one year. Pardoned May 21, 1896. Pelkey was suffering from tuberculosis, with no hope of recovery. He died June 21.

Pardons.

No. 20. JOHN F. MOYNAHAN. Convicted of manslaughter, Superior Court, Bristol county, Nov. 26, 1895. Sentenced to the house of correction for nine months. Pardoned May 21, 1896. The prisoner was in the last stages of phthisis pulmonalis. He was pardoned that he might die at home. He died about ten days after his release.

No. 21. BURTON C. STEVENSON. Convicted of breaking and entering, and larceny, Superior Court, Middlesex county, June 7, 1895. Sentenced to the house of correction for eighteen months. Pardoned May 26, 1896. The offence was a very slight one. He had no counsel at his trial. His previous reputation was of the best. The pardon committee were of the opinion that the object of imprisonment had been accomplished.

No. 22. ANNIE GILMORE. Convicted of adultery. Superior Court, Suffolk county, May term, 1895. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned June 4, 1896, upon the recommendation of the district attorney. The prisoner was a married woman with several children, one of whom was ill, and needed her mother's care. Through love of drink she became intimate with the man with whom she committed the crime. It was believed that the object of imprisonment had been accomplished by the punishment already suffered.

No. 23. JOHN MCCARTHY. Convicted of assault with intent to rob. Superior Court, Suffolk county, November term, 1892. Sentenced to the house of correction for five years. Pardoned June 23, 1896, on the ground that he had been sufficiently punished. He was sentenced without the knowledge of his friends, or allowing them a chance to defend him. This was his first offence. If counsel had been secured for him he undoubtedly would have received a much lighter sentence, as the offence was not a very serious one.

No. 24. HENRY J. MCGILL. Convicted of drunkenness, Third District Court, Bristol county, May 17, 1896. Sentenced to the house of correction for one year. Par-done June 30, 1896, upon the recommendation of the ^{Pardons.} justice and probation officer of the district court at New Bedford, on the ground of humanity. The prisoner had a wife and three children dependent upon him for support; soon after his conviction his wife met with a serious accident in a laundry, being scalded; the oldest child had also met with an accident, and was unable to work; and one of the others had broken a leg and arm. He was pardoned so that he might support his family. It was believed by the probation officer that he would hereafter lead a temperate life.

No. 25. JAMES CASHMAN. Convicted of indecent assault, Municipal Court, East Boston, June 1, 1896. Sentenced to the house of correction for six months. Pardoned July 16, 1896, upon the recommendation of the institutions commissioner of the city of Boston and many of the leading citizens of East Boston. The prisoner, an old man seventy-four years of age, was pardoned on account of his feeble mental and physical condition. His previous conduct and character had been irreproachable. The offence, which was a slight one, would undoubtedly never have been committed if he had been in his right mind. He died about two weeks after his release.

No. 26. FRED B. SHELHAMER, alias WILSON. Convicted of breaking and entering, Superior Court, Suffolk county, December term, 1893. Sentenced to the house of correction for four years. Pardoned July 16, 1896, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, who certified that "both the houses he entered were the houses of his sisters, and it is probable that he would not have entered the houses of strangers, as he had borne a good reputation." He was under the influence of liquor when the crime was committed. It was believed that the punishment already served had been sufficient, and that he would hereafter lead an orderly life.

No. 27. MICHAEL CONLON. Convicted of breaking and entering, Superior Court, Suffolk county, January term, 1895. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned July 23, 1896, upon the recom-

mentation of the district attorney and institutions commissioner. The prisoner was in failing health, and it was feared that he would become insane if he were obliged to serve his full term of imprisonment.

No. 28. GEORGE JACOBS. Convicted of assault, Third District Court, Southern Worcester, April 6, 1896. Sentenced to the house of correction for one year. Pardoned July 30, 1896. The prisoner does not understand the English language. At the time of his trial he did not know the nature of the charge against him, and he was without the advantage of counsel or an interpreter who understood his language (Armenian). An Italian who was interested in the complainant was used by the court as an interpreter, and the prisoner understands the Italian language no better than he does English. He did not understand his right of appeal. After his commitment he did employ counsel, but it was too late to appeal. The committee were unanimously of the opinion that he was sentenced under a misapprehension of the facts, and that had he been defended by counsel the facts that tend to establish his innocence of the offence would have been brought out.

Nos. 29 and 30. GEORGE H. WRIGHT and CHARLES M. SOMERS. Convicted of extortion, Superior Court, Worcester county, May 29, 1896. Sentenced to the house of correction for four months. Pardoned July 30, 1896, upon the recommendation of district attorney Parker, who certified that "the petitioners were indicted jointly with Orville L. Ford. I believe that Ford was the active and controlling factor in the commission of the crime, and I am of the opinion that Somers and Wright did not comprehend the nature or enormity of the offence, it having been committed, as I believe, largely at the instigation and suggestion of Ford." The pardon committee believed the prisoners had been sufficiently punished for the crime committed.

No. 31. CASIMO OLIVAR. Convicted of assault with intent to kill, Superior Court, Suffolk county, August term, 1895. Sentenced to the state prison for ten years. Pardoned Sept. 3, 1896, on the ground of innocence. The district attorney, after a careful investigation into the facts of the case and interviewing certain witnesses who did not testify at the trial, was of the opinion that the shooting was not done by Olivar, but by one Joseph Biseste, who has fled the country. Pardons.

No. 32. MARGARET JOHNSTONE. Convicted of drunkenness. Police Court of Holyoke, Sept. 17, 1895. Sentenced to the reformatory prison for women for two years. Pardoned Sept. 17, 1896, upon the recommendation of the commissioners of prisons. During her imprisonment she had been a well-behaved prisoner. She was pardoned after serving one half of her sentence, and sent to her former home in Scotland. It was believed that she had been sufficiently punished for the crime committed.

No. 33. VICTORIA GOODHALL. Convicted of keeping a disorderly house, Superior Court, Bristol county, June 17, 1896. Sentenced to six months in the house of correction, and to pay a fine of one hundred dollars. Pardoned Sept. 30, 1896, upon the recommendation of the county commissioners of Bristol county and the prison physician. The prisoner was seriously ill with heart disease. The fine had been paid and more than half the sentence had been served.

No. 34. BETSY H. ROBBINS. Convicted of being a common night-walker, First District Court, Barnstable county, June 9, 1896. Sentenced to the house of correction for six months. Pardoned Oct. 17, 1896. The prisoner, who was but seventeen years of age and of unsound mind, was pardoned about two months before her sentence expired, for the purpose of being transferred to the school for the feeble-minded.

No. 35. DANIEL MCCALL. Convicted of forgery and uttering, Superior Court, Suffolk county, April term, 1896. Sentenced to the house of correction for eighteen months. Pardoned Nov. 5, 1896. McCall was ill with pulmonary tuberculosis, with little chance for recovery.

No. 36. LAWRENCE A. JACOBS. Convicted of perjury, Superior Court, Suffolk county, March 27, 1895. Sentenced to the state prison for four years. Pardoned Nov.

Pardons.

14, 1896. The prison physician reported Jacobs as incurably ill with pulmonary phthisis. He was pardoned that he might die at home. He lived less than three weeks after his release.

No. 37. SIMON B. PORTER. Convicted of larceny, East Boston District Court, May 19, 1896. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned Nov. 25, 1896, upon the recommendation of judge Emmons, who imposed the sentence, facts having been recently brought to his attention which satisfied him that he has been sufficiently punished. This was the boy's first offence. The property, a bicycle, had been recovered. He was sent to the home of his parents, in Nova Scotia.

No. 38. JAMES F. LOUGHMAN. Convicted of stubbornness, Roxbury Municipal Court, June 26, 1896. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned Nov. 5, 1896, upon the recommendation of the commissioners of prisons. The prisoner, who was but sixteen years of age, was complained of by his father, who would not have made the complaint if he had understood the operations of the court which caused the boy's imprisonment at the reformatory. The commissioners and the father were of the opinion that he would hereafter be obedient to the parental authority.

No. 39. JAMES SWANTON, alias JOHN SULLIVAN. Convicted of larceny, Superior Court, Bristol county, Nov. 18, 1895. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned Nov. 25, 1896. Swanton was in the hospital, suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis. He was failing rapidly, with no hope of recovery.

No. 40. CHARLES H. WALKER. Convicted of adultery, Superior Court, Berkshire County, Jan. 22, 1896. Sentenced to the house of correction for fifteen months. Pardoned Dec. 3, 1896, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, the justices of the District Court of Northern Berkshire, the sheriff of Berkshire county, the probation officer, and the wife of the prisoner, upon the ground that the woman with whom he was convicted of adultery and her husband are reconciled and living together. The prisoner's wife, who needed his support, had forgiven him and desired to live with him again. It was believed that he had fully repented of his act, and had paid a sufficient penalty therefor. Pardons.

No. 41. ARTHUR M. FAGAN. Convicted of drunkenness, Fourth District Court, Plymouth county, July 3, 1896. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned Dec. 3, 1896. This was his first imprisonment. An uncle who lived outside the state was ready to give him immediate employment, where he would not associate with his former companions. The pardon committee were of the opinion that the object of imprisonment had been accomplished by the punishment already suffered.

No. 42. LUCINDA A. GROVER. Convicted of adultery, Superior Court, Bristol county, May 27, 1896. Sentenced to the house of correction for one year. Pardoned Dec. 10, 1896, on the ground that the circumstances that brought about her conviction, and her present purpose of reform were such as to merit, in the opinion of the pardon committee, the granting of a pardon to her. The district attorney concurred in this opinion.

No. 43. CHARLES J. JOHNSON. Convicted of assault, Superior Court, Bristol county, Feb. 3, 1896. Sentenced to two years in the house of correction. Pardoned Dec. 17, 1896, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, and the city marshal of Fall River. It was a serious question as to whether Johnson or the party assaulted—who was a notorious bully and had been arrested many times—was the aggressor. The prisoner was a quiet, inoffensive man, and would not get into trouble unless he was imposed upon. From the evidence submitted it was evident that he acted in self-defence, and would not have been convicted if he had not used a knife.

No. 44. WILLIAM MOFFITT. Convicted of lewd and lascivious cohabitation, Superior Court, Suffolk county,

Pardons.

March 11, 1895. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned Dec. 19, 1896, upon the recommendation of the district attorney. During his confinement Moffitt had married the woman with whom he had been living. He was pardoned in order to be able to return to his wife and three children and care for them. He had publicly acknowledged the paternity of the children.

No. 45. JOSEPH VIVIATO, alias VREATO. Convicted of adultery, Superior Court, Barnstable county, April 11, 1895. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned Dec. 4, 1896, upon the recommendation of the prison physician. The prisoner was suffering from mitral insufficiency and dilation of the heart, accompanied by great physical exhaustion. He was liable to die at any moment.

No. 46. JAMES E. GAGE. Convicted of felonious assault, Superior Court, Middlesex County, Nov. 18, 1892. Sentenced to the state prison for nine years. Pardoned Dec. 26, 1896, as an act of executive clemency. The district attorney who prosecuted the case certified that he "felt quite sure that the cause of public justice would not suffer thereby." Many of the leading citizens of Woburn, where the crime was committed, urged a pardon on the ground that he had been sufficiently punished for the crime committed, which was believed by the pardon committee to have been of a less serious character than that for which he was sentenced.

No. 47. HATTIE M. GERSHEFSKI. Convicted of larceny, Police Court of Holyoke, Nov. 5, 1896. Sentenced to the reformatory prison for women for eighteen months. Pardoned Dec. 31, 1896, upon the recommendation of the commissioners of prisons and the superintendent of the reformatory. It appeared that there were extenuating circumstances connected with this case which, if they had been properly presented to the court at the time of sentence, would undoubtedly have caused the prisoner to have been placed on probation.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, Feb. 24, 1897.]

I transmit for your consideration letters from certain officials of the state of New York relative to the locating and establishing of the boundary line between the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the state of New York, and the marking of the same at all necessary points by proper monuments. On the information furnished me it appears to me desirable that this work should be done, and I suggest that it may properly be entrusted to the commission on the topographical survey and map of this Commonwealth.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, Feb. 25, 1897.]

I transmit herewith a communication from the chairman of the commission appointed under chapter 515 of the acts of 1896, to investigate the affairs of the Massachusetts Benefit Life Association, and ask that your honorable bodies determine the further scope of the investigation committed to them and make such provision, if any, for its prosecution as you may deem fit.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 4, 1897.]

I transmit herewith for your information and consideration the report of the commission to investigate the public charitable and reformatory interests and institutions of the Commonwealth this day received.

The commission inform me that at an early day drafts of bills embodying the recommendations of the commission will be submitted in the form of appendices, which will be transmitted to you when received.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 10, 1897.]

I return herewith an act entitled "An Act relative to the preservation of Birds and Game", with my objections thereto in writing.

The purpose of this bill is to exempt from all legal protection at any season of the year certain of the so-called duck species, therein described as white-winged scoters, commonly called coot, sheldrake, old-squaws and loons, it being illegal under existing law to kill these birds between the dates of April 15 and September 1.

These birds have little or no marketable value, and the existing restrictions upon their slaughter could not have been enacted by your predecessors for the purpose of preserving a food supply. These restrictions are justified as being in accordance with the policy of the Commonwealth to seek to protect from extermination birds not directly harmful by affording them a period of safety at least during the breeding season. The birds enumerated in this act are now protected in the waters of the Commonwealth during their passage northward for nesting purposes. On their return in the autumn, after having provided for the continuance of their species, the restriction is removed. I believe this to be a wise and humane provision of the law. The presence of these birds in our waters affords pleasure and interest to many, and the right to destroy them during the entire year instead of during seven and one half months as now permitted would in my opinion materially increase the enjoyment of few and the profit of none. Another serious objection lies in the increased difficulty which this proposed law would entail upon the enforcement of the remaining provisions of the existing law unaffected by it. It is to be feared that either through ignorance or by intention a very imperfect discrimination would be exercised by those who should avail themselves of the enlarged opportunities for destruction afforded by this act, and that the more valuable kinds of ducks and other fowl would be exposed to slaughter equally with those named in this act, at the very season of all others when they should be unmolested. Persons and premises could not be searched without a warrant, and convictions would be infrequent. In this way the removal of all restrictions upon the killing of the less valuable species would tend to undermine the protection now wisely afforded to all. For the above reasons I am unable to approve the bill.

[To the honorable the senate and house of representatives, March 10, 1897.]

I return herewith an act entitled "An Act to protect the Estates of Deceased Persons from the Prosecution of Fraudulent Claims", with my objections thereto in writing.

The scope of the bill is much broader than its title. Even if it be conceded that legislation may be necessary to protect the estates of deceased persons from the prosecution of fraudulent claims, this bill does little in that direction, while it goes farther and opens the door to much which may be mischievous. Its operation is by no means limited to the case of persons apprehending litigation against their estates after their death. It is broad enough to permit any person having reason to believe that suit may be brought against him to take the initiative and puts it within the power of the courts to limit the rights of the plaintiff as to his time of bringing suit and as to the court in which it is to be brought. Under existing laws the plaintiff has the right to choose his own time and his own court. This bill takes away from him these rights in all cases where petition is brought by the defendant. There may be many reasons why a plaintiff is not ready to bring suit. He may not have the necessary means; his evidence may not be complete; or, in the case of an action for injuries received, he may not know the extent or permanency of the injuries for which claim is to be made. Moreover, many persons contemplating bringing suits, if not compelled to elect forthwith, might conclude not to press their claims. This bill compels immediate election, and is therefore in the direction of increase of litigation, for it permits defendants to initiate litigation as well as plaintiffs. The bill also gives the defendant the choice of forum. The plaintiff's cause of action might be cognizable both by the state and the federal courts, and under different rules of law. He may have the right to bring his action either in the supreme judicial court, in the superior court or in the district court. He may have the right to summon the defendant into his own county. If he is a citizen of another state he may also have the right, if the defendant comes within his jurisdiction, to bring suit against him in his own state. In all these cases, upon petition by the defendant served upon the plaintiff the defendant elects his forum, and it is even possible that the order of the court might be so made as to require the plaintiff to bring the case in a court where for technical reasons, such as the statute of limitations, he would be unable to maintain his action. So radical a change in the policy of legislation under the title of affording protection to the estates of deceased persons against fraudulent claims is to my mind objectionable legislation, and only to be sanctioned in case the need of additional safeguards is clearly demonstrated. But this is not the fact. It is not true that as a rule injustice is done in the courts of this Commonwealth to the estates of deceased persons by reason of fraudulent claims. On the contrary, it is very seldom that such claims finally prevail. The percentage of such successful suits is certainly not greater than in the case of unjust claims against living persons. Existing statutes carefully guard the rights of citizens in this respect. Among these are the statutes authorizing the bringing of bills to quiet title to real estate; the provisions of the statutes authorizing the taking of depositions to perpetuate testimony which enable a person to perpetuate his evidence against supposed claims to be made against him; and the very salutary provisions of the statutes of 1896 (chapter 445), which authorize the introduction of statements, written or oral, memoranda and entries of the deceased, together with evidence of his acts and habits of dealing, tending to disprove or to show the improbability of the plaintiff's claim. Moreover, the very sort of claims against which this bill is directed would not be substantially affected by its passage. Persons having fraudulent claims which they are waiting for the death of the other party to make easier, usually conceal their cause of action so that the defendant has no knowledge that such a claim is to be made. The cases where a man would be forewarned of threatened suits after his death so as to be enabled to avail himself of the provisions of this bill would be comparatively infrequent. For these reasons and because I am of opinion that the bill is dangerous as well as unnecessary, I am unable to approve it.

I transmit herewith and recommend to the careful consideration of your honorable bodies a communication this day received from the trustees of the Massachusetts hospital for epileptics.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 8, 1897.]

I transmit herewith appendices to the recent report of the commission to investigate the charitable and reformatory interests and institutions of the Commonwealth, consisting of drafts of certain acts submitted by the commission in accordance with their recommendations, which have already been laid before you, and I ask for them the careful consideration which their importance demands.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 10, 1897.]

I return herewith the bill entitled "An Act relative to the Sale of Pure Alcohol by Dealers in Paints and Chemicals", with my objections thereto in writing.

The bill is a radical departure from the policy of existing statutes regulating the sale of alcohol, and I am unable to believe that its scope and effect were fully considered by the legislature. It is unnecessary to discuss the question whether it would be wise to permit the sale of alcohol by dealers in paints and chemicals for mechanical or chemical purposes under the same restrictions as those which apply to such sales by druggists. Such are not the provisions of this bill. It permits such sales without any restrictions whatever as to time, place or manner.

Under the provisions of statutes 1896, chapter 397, no sale of alcohol can lawfully be made by druggists except upon the certificate of the purchaser that the same is for mechanical, medicinal or chemical purposes. This certificate must be cancelled at the time of sale. The druggist must also keep a book in which he shall enter at the time of such sale the date thereof, the name of the purchaser, who shall also sign his name in said book as part of said entry, the quantity and price of said alcohol, and the residence by street and number of the purchaser. This book and the certificates shall at all times be open to the inspection of the officers of the police. A penalty is provided for the making of a false certificate or entry, and the making of a sale without such certificate and entry is made punishable by fine or imprisonment.

These wholesome regulations are intended to secure control and supervision of the business, and to enforce compliance with the provisions of the statutes which limit sales of alcohol by druggists to cases where it is required for medicinal, mechanical or chemical purposes. Without such regulations it would be difficult, if not impossible, so to limit its sale. It is unfortunately true that there are many whose appetites are so abnormal that they will, if they can, buy alcohol for use as a beverage; and it has been found that, when its sale is permitted for a harmless and useful purpose, the temptation to make sales to persons who seek to buy it for purposes of intoxication is such as to render necessary safeguards like those now in force. Without such safeguards convictions for unlawful sales would be difficult if not impossible.

These restrictions, which the wisdom of your predecessors has imposed upon the business of selling alcohol, are wholly wanting in this bill. So radical a departure from the policy of existing statutes is not to be sanctioned without strong reasons of policy or necessity, which I do not find to exist. On the contrary, I think the provisions of the bill if allowed to become a law would tend largely to take away the control and oversight of the sale of intoxicating liquors, which it is the wise policy of the Commonwealth to preserve.

I transmit herewith a communication this morning received from the state house construction commissioners asking that your honorable bodies make a further and final appropriation for the completed work on the state house extension, so-called, and I request that you give it your careful and favorable consideration.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 14, 1897.]

I enclose herewith a communication received from the chairman of the topographical survey commission relative to the present imperfect delimitation of the boundary line between this Commonwealth and the state of Rhode Island. It seems to me desirable that action should be taken properly and permanently to mark the boundary line, and the statement of the chairman of the commission would indicate that this can be done at moderate cost if the two states co-operate in the work. I ask for this subject the careful consideration of your honorable bodies.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 22, 1897.]

I have the honor to call to your attention the fact that Wednesday, May 26, at 11 A.M., has been fixed as the date of the formal presentation to the governor of the Commonwealth of the Bradford Manuscript History, recently ordered by decree of the Consistory Court of the Diocese of London to be returned to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts by the hands of the Honorable Thomas F. Bayard, lately ambassador at the court of St. James; and to suggest for the favorable consideration of your honorable bodies that the exercises of presentation be held in the house of representatives on the day and hour above given in the presence of a joint convention of the two bodies and of invited guests and the public.

[To the honorable the house of representatives, May 26, 1897.]

I transmit herewith a communication this morning received from a committee of the board of agriculture and the director of the Hatch experiment station relative to a new insect pest which has recently appeared for the first time in this Commonwealth and in the United States, and expressing their belief that an appropriation of a moderate amount should be forthwith made to meet this sudden emergency. I recommend the subject to the careful consideration of your honorable bodies.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, June 11, 1897.]

I herewith return without my approval a bill entitled "An Act relative to Green Harbor in the Town of Marshfield."

The question of the removal of the dike referred to in the bill has been a subject of discussion for some years. It was constructed under the provisions of the statutes of 1871, chapter 303. I am informed that the result of building the dike was to reclaim a large area of territory which had formerly been partly or wholly submerged by tide water. The effect of removing the dike will undoubtedly be to destroy much of the value of the land so created, by causing it again to be submerged at high tide.

The legislature of 1896 fully considered the question of the removal of the dike, and the result was the enactment of chapter 495 of the statutes of 1896, which provided that the board of harbor and land commissioners and the state board of health, sitting as a joint board, were to cause an examination of the marshes and dike to be made by competent engineers, and if, upon receiving such report, the joint board should determine that a substantial improvement and benefit to Green Harbor would result from the removal of the dike, and that no damage to vested property rights greater than the benefit and improvement to be derived from such removal would result therefrom, then the board of harbor and land commissioners should remove the dike.

The reason for the passage of this statute was without doubt that it was regarded as uncertain how extensive the damages would be which the Commonwealth would be called upon to sustain by the removal of the dike. Engineers have been appointed by the joint board under the provisions of the said statute, who have been at work investigating the question submitted to them. They found the question even more difficult than it was supposed to be when the act was passed, and have asked for further time to complete their examination.

It is to be feared that the damages which would be caused by the removal of the dike are too great to warrant the Commonwealth in entering upon such an undertaking. The bill before me recognizes this difficulty, and endeavors to prevent the paying of large damages by section 2, which, in substance, provides that the increase in the value of such property resulting from the building of the dike in 1871 shall be deducted from the damages assessed to the owners of vested rights. I am advised that this provision is unconstitutional. When property is taken under the right of eminent domain there is no escape from the payment of full damages for the value of the property taken, reckoned at the time of the taking. This bill attempts to deduct from the compensation to be awarded a substantial portion of the damages sustained.

Moreover such a provision, even if constitutional, would be open to the charge of possible injustice. If the ownership of the land reclaimed has changed during the twenty-five years that the dike has been in existence, the original owner has received by the sale of his land all of the enhanced value caused by the building of the dike. This enhanced value the purchaser would lose under this bill.

If this provision be held to be unconstitutional the result will be either that the whole act will be defeated, or that all the damages assessed caused by the removal of the dike will have to be paid by the Commonwealth. In the latter case the enactment of the bill proposed would precipitate the question of damages before the joint board appointed by the last legislature have been able to inform themselves and the Commonwealth as to the amount of such damages.

If, when the facts are known, it proves to be expedient to remove the dike, the commission already appointed has authority to do so. If, on the other hand, it should prove to be unduly expensive, the work should not be undertaken except under an act passed with a clear understanding of the consequences to the Commonwealth. This cannot be said of this bill.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, June 11, 1897.]

I herewith return without my approval the bill entitled "An Act to authorize a State Appropriation for the support of Public Schools."

In my opinion, it is not a bill for the benefit of the public schools of the Commonwealth. It does not necessarily increase the sum to be expended for their support, for it contains no provision which prevents the towns and cities which will receive money under the proposed tax from reducing their own appropriations for schools by an equal amount. I am informed that an amendment designed to improve the bill in this respect was overwhelmingly rejected.

Nor can the bill be defended as an extension of the wise and well established policy of the Commonwealth, under which the weaker and overburdened communities are aided by the state in their duty of maintaining public schools. Any measure which should have such an effect would meet with my cordial support; and I have recently approved a bill enlarging the scope and usefulness of the aid extended by the state to schools in towns where the burden of maintaining them falls heavily upon the inhabitants. Under the existing provisions for distribution of the school fund, which is annually increased by general taxation in the amount of $100,000, 260 towns now receive assistance therefrom in sums varying from $100 to $500. These sums are paid to towns whose valuation is not greater than $3,000,000, the poorer towns receiving relatively the greater assistance.

Encouragement is also held out to towns to increase the amount of their own expenditures for school purposes, by provisions increasing the state aid to such towns. This is as it should be. It recognizes both the principle of state aid to towns where it is most needed, and its distribution in such a way as to increase the efficiency of the common schools of the Commonwealth. If this assistance is to be increased the method of its distribution should, in my opinion, be adhered to.

But this bill, considered as a measure for the relief of small and overburdened communities, is imperfect and ineffective. A considerable proportion of the money to be raised by the proposed tax goes to cities and to the larger towns. It is true that some relief is offered under its provisions to communities deserving of state aid ; but so incidentally that such relief cannot properly be said to be the principal purpose of the bill. For example, 18 cities and towns, each having a valuation of over $10,000,000 will receive state aid under the operation of this bill ; while the number of those whose valuation exceeds $4,000,000, which will be beneficiaries, is 48. Many of these are prosperous and enterprising communities, which do not need to be assisted by the Commonwealth in the discharge of their municipal obligations. Among the cities so benefited by the bill may be named Lowell, Lawrence, Fall River, Fitchburg, Haverhill, Lynn, Worcester, Pittsfield, Malden, Marlborough, Somerville and Cambridge ; and among the larger towns are Attleborough, Peabody, Greenfield, Westfield, Framingham, Stoneham, Concord, Winchester, Dedham, Gardner and Whitman.

The list is by no means complete, but is sufficient to show the operation of the provisions of the bill. It would be difficult to say upon what sound principle the cities and towns I have named can properly demand the aid of the Commonwealth in maintaining the standard of their common schools. A striking illustration of the effects of the bill is the fact that it will take over $9,000 from Springfield and give more than twice that amount to Worcester, a wealthy and self-reliant city of varied and prosperous interests. Considered as a bill to extend the policy of state aid for educational purposes to towns whose burdens are unduly great it is so crude and cumbersome in its scheme, and so imperfect in its results, that I am unable to believe that it was enacted, primarily, at least, for such a purpose.

The measure, therefore, can only be defended as a bill for the equalization of taxes among the towns and cities of the Commonwealth. As such, even, it is at best but partial in its operation and unsatisfactory in its results. Being a tax laid directly upon certain communities of the Commonwealth for the benefit of other communities it is likely to prove a constant source of irritation to those upon whom its provisions bear with more or less severity, and a constant temptation to increase rather than to correct the existing inequalities of valuations.

To what extent and for what purposes richer communities should be taxed to contribute to the support of the poorer communities, and whether the time has come when the theory of local taxation for local needs which has hitherto prevailed in Massachusetts should give place to taxation by the state, are grave questions of political economy upon which there is much difference of opinion.

The legislature of 1896, in view of the importance of the subject, authorized the appointment of a commission to consider the whole question of taxation, and the many and difficult problems which it presents, including that of equalization of taxes among the cities and towns of the state. Such a commission has been appointed, consisting of men of high character and repute, who have given the subject the most careful attention. The report of that commission is to be made in October of this year; and will undoubtedly be of great service to the next legislature in its consideration of questions of taxation. In my annual message to your honorable bodies I stated that in my opinion it was not expedient to make any important changes during this session of the legislature in the laws relative to taxation.

I adhere to the opinion therein expressed; and in addition to the other objections to the present bill which I have suggested, I think it unwise to enact a statute dealing with so important and difficult a question of taxation, pending the exhaustive consideration which the commission is now giving to the matter in all its aspects, especially in view of the fact that the bill before me does not go into operation until long after the report of the commission will be before the legislature.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, June 11, 1897.]

I return herewith without my approval the bill entitled "An Act to provide Relief for the Société St. Jean Baptiste de West Boylston, Mass."

This bill appears to be open to objections. I am informed that the corporation named in the bill is a fraternal benefit association, organized for the purpose of paying benefits to its members in case of sickness or death. It owns no property other than funds in the treasury. The only damage it can claim by reason of the construction of the metropolitan water basin is that which may result from the dispersion of its members who will no longer be able to live in West Boylston, and the possible consequent impairment of its usefulness as a charitable organization.

I do not now discuss the question of the wisdom of affording relief for damages of this nature. But the proposed bill would be ineffective in accomplishing the desired result. An injury of this sort is not one for which compensation can be had under the ordinary rules of damages established by the courts. The damages claimed are vague, remote, speculative and not capable of accurate determination, and it is not at all improbable that upon a case arising for judicial determination the courts might interpret the act as giving relief only for those direct and specific damages which have heretofore been recognized in judicial proceedings. In such an event the persons for whose relief this act is proposed would meet only embarrassment and loss through its enactment.

If, when the basin is constructed, it is found that the association is thereby disintegrated and its usefulness impaired or destroyed, it may be that the legislature will deem it wise to vote a sum of money therefor; but as any such payment would be a mere grant, and not compensation for injury to property capable of judicial ascertainment by the courts, it should be decreed by act of legislature, and not under the forms of law. These are not adapted to fix or measure the bounty of the Commonwealth.
